KESTREL EDGE

AND OTHER PLAYS

WILFRID GIBSON

LACRILLAN AND CO, LIMITED
1 MARTIN'S STREET, LONDON

KESTREL EDGE

AND OTHER PLAYS

ΒY

WILFRID GIBSON

MACMILLAN AND CO., LIMITED ST. MARTIN'S STREET, LONDON

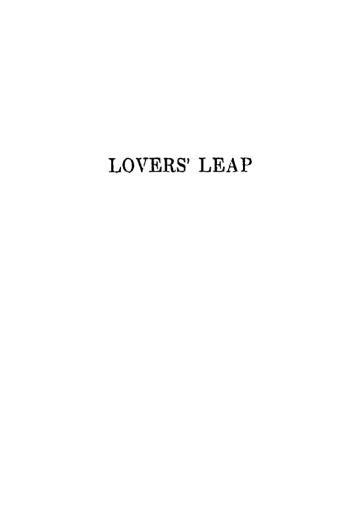

1924

CONTENTS

LOVERS LEAP			**************************************
GANGRELS			6.
RED ROWLY		-	*1
BLICKLODER		-	17
WINTERS STOR	-		*, [22]
RESTREL EDGE			.,,
			11.

CONTENTS

LOVERS' LEAP		-	-	-	-	PAGE
GANGRELS -			-	-	-	61
RED ROWAN -			-	-	-	61
Blackadder -	-	. ,	-		_	87
WINTER'S STOB-	-			-	-	103
KESTREL EDGE -			-	-	-	117

PERSONS

Angus Earnshaw, a young farmer
LLCY Earnshaw, his nife
RACHEL Earnshaw, his mother
ALEC Earnshaw, his brother
Esther Burn
Adah Burn, her younger sister

SCENE I

Scene: The kitchen of Windwhistle, a Border farmstead, on the evening of May term-day: Lucy Earnshaw, at the table in the middle of the room, ironing: Rachel Earnshaw, sitting by the hearth, darning hose.

RACHEL: You've done it!

Lucy: Done it?

RACHEL: Sure enough.

Lucy: And so,

It's I that's done it—I'm to bear the blame?

I'm to sit mumchance, while my servant-girl's

Flaunting her shame to all the countryside:

And everybody guessing . . .

RACHEL: Little call

To waste much wit in guessing.

Lucy: Nay, God knows,

My husband's name's in all the neighbours' mouths

Coupled with thon bold-eyed loose-petticoat.

RACHEL: Neighbours, say you? Buck-rabbits and jack-hares

Real scandalised at such-like goings-on:

And, hark, a cock-grouse clucks such spicy tattle

Would make a black ram blush!

Lucy: Ay, sure enough,

A gey lone outby God-forsaken neuk,

Windwhistle and I sorely rue the day Ever I clapt eyes on it

RACHEL Yet, last week
You seemed to find Windwhistle lively enough,
And over-thronged, and all, and couldn't rest
Till you'd cleared out the two too many

Lucy Rest,
Under the same roof with thon hussies 'Nay!
I've tholed a deal, but even a worm will turn,

RACHEL To be retrodden on?

Lucy
Ay, you can fieer
And make a mock of me, you and your son!
You'll drive me daft, betwirt you
What could I do
But send the baggage packing! Could I guess
The other wench would side with her and go?

Good riddance to a pair of sluts, say I

RACHEL And welcome to new wenches? Ay, you've done it.

Lucy Done at ?

RACHEL Thon same sluts knew their work, they did

And we can't run the farm, wanting two hands

LLCY Well, hasn't Angus gone to seek new hands?

They're none so hard to come by, there's no lack

Of lasses at May hirings

RACHEL Sang the brandling,
"The frying-pan's too hot, I'll try the fire"
Sluts for sluts' work, say I and, anyway,
You'd learnt the worst of them that sort can't hold
A man like Angus He'll not fling himself
From Lovers' Leap with such though I could fancy

A woman might get such a hold of him
He'd dash himself to death for her sake—ay,
Would leap headlong with her, and never blench,
If 'twere the only way. He's got the spirit—
Just such another as the lad who leapt
In the old story: but the lass, I doubt,
Is far to seek who'd take the plunge with him;
And yet, you never know, you never know:
He may lie broken at the crag-foot yet:
He's just the headstrong breed that . . .

Lucy: Mercy me, What keeps you raveling about Lovers' Leap?

RACHEL: I've always had a liking for those lovers: They took their road—left talk to other folk. It's only deeds that count: that's why, although I loathe the things men do, I envy them The doing. Men can act, while women nag,

Or eat their hearts out, brooding: though there once Were womenfolk who scorned to sit and sulk:

But the days of Jaels and Jezebels are done.

Lucy: And why should Angus jump from Lovers' Leap?

RACHEL: If Angus loved, he'd be a breakneck lover: But it wouldn't be for your sake, or for limmers Like them you've sacked, and happen will live to rue The sacking of.

Lucy: So I'm to sit down under . . .

RACHEL: Much sitting down at Windwhistle for you, Or anyone, if you can't keep a wench!

Lucy: They aren't all baggages: and, whether or no, I only did my duty.

RACHEL That you did,

And much good may it do you Turning out
The black sheep, happen, you'll let in the wolf.
De'il kens who Angus will fetch home with him
You're right where there's an Earnshaw, there's no lack

Of lasses and you've given your man the job
He's born and bred to. Well, you'll soon learn now
The tale of your new troubles, they'll be on you
Before the hour's out. Angus won't pick up
A brace of worn-out besoms, naught but shank
And frowzy wisps, I'll warrant. He's no use
For female scarecrows at Windwhistle, bless him!
He's a true Earnshaw, with a lively eye
For sonsy limmers and I mind his father
Had a lucky knack of hiring orphans

Lucy Orphans?

You mean he

RACHEL Ay, no trouble with relations He was far seeing, Jake was

Lucy And you let him-

You didn't care !

RACHEL Care—care ' I could have killed him The first time—ay, and every time '

Lucy And yet .

RACHEL I didn't I'd not pluck enough I'm weak—Naught but a stickit and half hearted Judith Happen if I'd been the sort with spunk to knife him, There'd have been no call to do it, after all

Lucy And I'm to stand the like, without a word?
RACHEL If you've the sense I never once let on

I cared a straw: I'd gumption enough to ken You can't hold any man by whimpering. A slack tongue never tightened any knot, Though sharp words have cut many.

Lucy: So, I'm to let

My husband loose to live in wickedness; And never check . . .

RACHEL: You fancy you could check him,

A doll like you! You little ken your husband.

One woman seldom seems to serve a man—

A bitter truth: but wives must eat sour grass;

And chew the cud of it through all their days.

Boys will be boys, they say; and men are men: When a man's grown, you cannot make him over;

That's all a wife need know.

Lucy: There's men and men.

My father never . . .

RACHEL: Not that you heard tell on.

Lucy: Nor anyone else.

RACHEL: Your mother had rare luck.

Lucy: You've dwelt so long cooped up at Wind-whistle.

You've come to think all men are midden-cocks, To lord it as they like among tame clockers.

You're much mistaken if you judge all men . . .

RACHEL: Have it your way. I'd take it, men are men,

And women women, the world over. Still, Leastways, you cannot doubt I ken the Earnshaws; And it's an Earnshaw you've to reckon with.

Lucy: No Earnshaw shall play fast and loose with me.

RACHEL How'll you prevent

LTCY
Give him a piece of my mind
RACHEL He's had a taste already I'd be doubting

You'd a deal left to spare

Licy I'll let him know!

RACHEL A waste of precious knowledge -muckle good,

School-teachering him—pearls before swine

Lucy What's that?
RACHEL You're not a scholar you'd not understand

Lucy He'll understand, before I've done with him .

He hasn't heard the last

RACHEL He'll hear the last

Before you've vented your spite and 'twill be he Will settle when he's had enough, I reckon;

Or I don't know the strain

Lucy You never fancy

RACHEL Never I only know, I've learnt my lesson It takes a braw louse to browbeat a hon

In this world, Lucy, you've to

Lccr What a world!

RACHEL The world's as the Lord made it He'd His reasons.

Doubtless and, whether or no, 'twould puzzle you To make a better in six days, my lady

And certain-sure the Lord won't make it over

Every five minutes just to suit our notions.

A rare world it would be if every jenny

Had her own string, and could pull! Lump it, or like it,

It's all we'll get this side the coffin-lid

Yet, what a tug I'd give, if I'd the chance! I'd turn things topsy-turvy, if I'd got To frizzle in the devil's frying-pan For ever after. I'd serve some folk out.

But I was speiring what you mean to do?

Lucy: To do?

RACHEL: Ay, do: the braw Windwhistle cocks

Have never yet been cowed by clockers' cackle.

Lucy: Do? There's not much that I can do, God help me!

RACHEL: Nay, I was duberous you'd the spunk for doing:

You're not the breed.

Lucy: You only said just now,

We can't change aught.

RACHEL: But we'd be wattikins

Never to try.

Lucy: What can I do?

RACHEL: Naught, naught:

You're not the mettlesome stuff that might be doing. You'd be no match for Angus: for all your clash, You're a weak brashy body. Devil kens, I've little room to talk: though I, at your age, Was twice the woman you'll ever be, I'd not

A chance with Jake. 'Twill take you all your time To do as much as I did.

Lucy: And what's that?

RACHEL: To hold your tongue.

Lucy: I'll never let my husband . . .

RACHEL: You'd pit yourself against an Earnshaw —you!

And gloated over that body, cold at last,
Before the red bull gored him—ay, it took
A bull, Windwhistle Champion, to finish Jake:
No mankeen heifer could face him: and he died,
With life, a red-hot fury in his reins.

Then I was sorry.

Lucy: Sorry he should perish

In all the pride of wickedness?

RACHEL: Nay, sorry

Jacob should perish in the pride of life, With such a lust of living on him.

Lucy: Yet,

You could have killed . . .

RACHEL: If I'd not understood him.

It's understanding gars you hold your hand,

Even when the fingers twitch to grip the knife-haft. Lucy: God! a nice family I've married into—

A house of devils!

RACHEL: Smell the reek of singeing? Happen, it's only your iron. Ay, poor doll,

There's blood, not sawdust, in the Earnshaws' veins:

And Angus—though his story may end different:

He's young; and still has time to meet his marrow At some chance cross-roads, in the market-place;

Or she may walk in here at any moment.

Lucy: Not while I live.

RACHEL: So, you've a mind to pitch Yourself headlong from Lovers' Leap? Not you!

And, anyway, you'd need to leap alone.

Lucy: She shall not cross . . .

RACHEL: Ay, you've the bragging tongue:

Best bridle it, my lady, if you'd live long And take your luck like other wives, unless You're itching to be Vashti.

And who's she? LECY

RACHEL You don't know? Nay, you wouldn't

She was a queen If you'd been different

> Different? Larcy

Ay, you might . . RACHEL

Lucy I might?

Ay, if it wasn't for the "if" RACHEL.

It's always ifs that gravel us in this life,

Unless we're lucky Earnshaws, and born blind To ifs and ans, and so can course clean through them You're you, till doomsday, and can't help yourself,

Worse luck-though whether worse for you or Angus

LLCY What is it you'd have me do?

RACHEL Since you re yourself Nothing but keep your tongue between your teeth

Whatever happens, though you should bite the tip off Sore tongues will heal

LUCY I'll have no mistress here.

RACHEL Nor master, either? Well, what comes will come

Folk must have fires and who can check the wind That whisks the flighty spark into the wheatstack? 1 t little need to wormt yet, maybe

Rac ly an off-chance Angus finds his fate enous ey—I may never live to see A hundred the mated, though I'd give ten years

To watch the clash—and, anyhow, you'll learn Your luck before you're many minutes older. Angus and Alec should be back by this With the old pig-cart creaking with new wenches. You should have wedded Alec: he's no Earnshaw: He's easy-going, neither kens or cares If he's between the shafts or on the box—A husband born: no Lovers' Leap for him, No crashing over crag-tops to destruction—And all for love! If folk would wed their mates, Twould be a different and a duller world.

Lucy: Why ever did I marry?

RACHEL: Ask another!

That question never found an answer yet For any woman who'd the need to ask it.

Lucy: But why should men be . . .

RACHEL: Just because they're men;

And so can't help themselves.

Lucy: And women must . . .

RACHEL: Remember they are women; and that few Have zest enough to satisfy the hunger Of life that burns the body of a man.

Lucy: Ay, you're my husband's mother, sure enough: But I'll not listen to such wicked talk.

RACHEL: Crinkling your dainty nose to sniff the brimstone?

Well, we're all sinners in a world of sin:
Yet wicked tongues whiles have the trick of truth.
If only a body's wicked enough, no call
For tarradiddles; he can speak his mind.
It's only half-and-halfers need to lie.

LCCY The truth !

RACHEL You doubt it? Is't not bitter enough? But you've not learnt to savour truth by its tang.

I'm duberous you'll ever relish it

LLCY Would any decent woman like to hear . .

RACHEL Like? I said naught of liking Folk can relish

A flavour they've no liking for and wives Must needs soon lose the taste for lollipops.

Lucy It beats me, what you're driving at, at all: First, I must do next, I must be a dummy, And let my husband and his mistresses

Trample me in the clarts, without a murmur.

You talk for talking's sake

Racher Whatever else
Would any woman of sense be talking for?
The shrewdest tongue can't turn dolls into devils—
Nay, nor, poor poppet, men to manonettes
So, my last word to you is—Hold your whisht,
Whatever happens this side of the grave
You'll never rue a silence, nor want to cut
Your tongue out for not speaking

Lucr Sound advice

From you whose tongue is ever on the buzz,

Biting and stinging with its bitter jibes

RACHEL My tongue can wag now I'm a looker on,

Because it's had the wit to bide its time

Once it was muter than a mowdywarp's

Lucy I'm to believe that?

RACHET As you like

Your tongue!

RACHEL: Ay, it kept dumb, though many's the time
I've bitten

My lips until I tasted the salt blood

To keep my tongue from lashing out. And you . . .

Lucy: Well, any way, I sacked the wenches.

RACHEL: Ay,

But can you keep it up? You've flicked the flies off,

For other flies to settle. When I speak

Of doing, I mean doing once and for all.

Lucy: I'd liefer die than let . . .

RACHEL: Hark!

Lucy: What do you hear?

RACHEL: Old Bessie clattering through the ford: they're coming,

Angus and Alec, and who else, de'il kens!

Lucy: Who else? Two servant-girls my husband's hired

To hoe and weed, pick stones, and muck the byre;

And they'll soon learn who's mistress.

RACHEL (rising and throwing open the yard door):

True for you:

We'll all soon learn who's mistress, sure enough.

(Heard without—a grind of wheels and clatter of hoofs; the swinging back of a gate; the noise of a cart rumbling into the yard and pulling up; the clashing-to of the gate; a sound of voices; the jingling and stamping of a horse being unyoked; then the tread of steps approaching the door. Esther and Adah Burn, the new farm-servants, enter, carrying between them a small, rope-tied wooden trunk which they set down on the threshold Esther Born is a strapping girl of twenty with still, dark eyes Rachel and Lici Earnshaw stare at her, fascinated, without a word, while she stands quietly looking straight before her, as though she did not see them Adah Burn is a slight, pretty girl of seventeen with restless eyes and a petulant mouth)

Adah (torning her head) Well, when you've taken stock of us, perhaps

You'll show us to our beds. We've had our tea— Thank you for asking! And I'm too dead sleepy To try a staring-match with anyone

And then old pig-cart's joggled my poor bones
Till I'm all aches I ve not been used to pig-carts

RACHEL Nor aught but Shanks's mare, and that

There'll be no pig-cart when you quit best order Your ladyship's brougham to call for you, or learn To keep a civil tongue, wench

ADAH Civil tongues

Seem easily kept in this dumb house

Estiver Whisht, Adah RACHEL (lighting a candle, and groung towards the

RACHEL (lighting a candle, and going towards the door leading into the passage) I'll show you to your attic. Fetch your kist

And mind don't dun't the walls, or bash the stair-treads. They're weak, already, with bumping up and down Of wenches' boxes every hiring-day.

ADAH Come, Esther, don't stand gaping like an owl

No call for you to be struck staring-silly,
Though it seems we've happened on a hoolets' nest.

If you can't speak up for yourself, at least catch hold

Your end of the box; and let's away to bed.

ESTHER: Whisht, Adah, whisht!

ADAH: Nay, I'll say what I like!

I'll not be hushed by you or anyone:

I'm not a bairn now.

Esther: Nay—would God you were!

ADAH: "Hush-a-bye baby on the tree-top"? Ay, "Twould suit somebody's games to keep me a bairn, To hustle out of sight when ever a man Keeks round the doorcheek, eh? Oh, but you're sly! You think I'm simple, but I ken as much

Of men . . .

ESTHER: Pray God, you never ken as much!

RACHEL (muttering): "When the wind ceases, the cradle will fall."

Adah (to Esther): You keep

Your breath to cool your porridge, and your prayers For them that ask you for them, lass.

RACHEL: "And down Tumbles baby and cradle and all." But come along: I can't stand here, while you two choose to squabble—Wasting the candle. Are you coming, or no?

(The two girls lift the box; follow RACHEL EARNSHAW out of the kitchen, and are soon heard climbing the stairs. When RACHEL returns, Lucy is still standing, gazing after them abstractedly.)

RACHEL You're a fine mistress!

Lucy Thon's the saucy Jade
I've got to knuckle down to—thon's the sort

Takes a man's fancy! ordering me about
In my own house! But picking stones will break
Her pride, if I've my way with her

RACHEL Your way?

Lucy She'll learn to bite her lips

RACHEL You've naught to fear

From chatterbox she's not the dangerous one.

Twas quiet eyes and Sunday afternoons

I learnt to dread

Lucy Dangerous? You mean . . .

Angus Earnshaw enters, followed by Alec.

Angus Who's dangerous?

Let them come on I'll be a match for them
I'd sell my soul to meet a dangerous devil
I'm fair fed-up with petiteoats and mugs
Talking of mugs, I've got some news for mother
Your youngest's fallen over head-and-ears
In love already with the pouting wench

ALEC: You hold your tongue, or ...

Anors See, his pretty blushes! O fond first love! The time has been when glances From saucy eyes would set my ear tips tingling—Eh, Lucy lass?

Lucy You don't get over me
With fleeching, I'll be mistress of Windwhistle . .
Andre Still in the tantrums? You're a termagant—

But, dangerous?—just about as dangerous As any other frightened hen. Shoo! Shoo! Where are the lasses—packed them off already? Well, they'd be tired.

RACHEL: What do they call the wenches?

Angus: Burn.

RACHEL: Sisters?

Angus: Ay.

RACHEL: Unlike enough, to be so.

Angus: Young Alec's flame is Adah, and the other . . . (Pauses.)

RACHEL: Well, well: and so, you cannot mind her name?

Perhaps, Alec . . .

ALEC: Ay, it's Esther.

RACHEL: And the virgin

Found favour in the king's sight.

Lucy: What's that you're mumbling?

RACHEL: You wouldn't understand: it's Bible-talk.

Lucy: This wicked house!

RACHEL: That you're the mistress of?

Argus: Ay, ay, there's mistresses and mistresses.

But dangerous, you said? I've never met

A dangerous woman yet. I'd like to tame . . .

I'd swap Windwhistle for a spice of danger.

RACHEL: You're lucky, if you lose no more than that.

SCENE II

Serve The same, about six o'clock the next evening RACHEL and LUCY EARNSHAW setting the table for tea

HALHEL (going towards the window and looking out) Time they were knocking off for tea-gey rough On them, to set them picking stones the first day Lity I don't see why they're paid for picking

RACHEL You've never done it?

Not I 1 I've never been Lrev A great but the likes of them are used

To field work

stones

Ay, they're used to breaking their backs RACHEL To earn their own, and other people's, bread.

Iter Well, someone's got to do it I don't sec . . . RACHEL You don't, and yet you talk. If you'd picked stones

From six to six, as I've done in my time, Happen, 'twould open your eyes, and shut your mouth

Lacy My father'd have thought shame to set me to ıŁ

RACHEL And rightly st's no job for any girl And then lass Adah doesn't look over strong Lacy 'lut, tut 'twill do the brazen bildert good To bend her back a little and anyway Limmers the like of her are born and bred To such like jobs, they've always had to do it And so, don't feel

Not being flesh and blood? RACHEL:

Lucy: Well, beggars can't be choosers.

RACHEL: If they could

Some of us would change places. But there's naught Of the beggar about the Burns: they've got some spirit,

Thon lasses: and, for all her quiet ways, Esther's the prouder of the two, I take it. Though I'm none easy daunted, I shouldn't care To cross her will, or touch the quick of her pride.

Lucy: Byre-mucker's pride!

RACHEL: Pride doesn't always sit

With folded hands in the parlour.

LUCY: Well, it seems,

Angus is none too tender of their pride:

He kens the way to take with such: I trust

He'll keep them at it, till they sweat the starch out.

RACHEL: Angus is like his father, hard on women: He uses them; they're naught but bones and thews To hoe, pick stones, and muck the byre for him; And only flesh and blood to serve his pleasure.

Lucy: Well, thank the Lord, he doesn't seem too soft . . .

RACHEL: Such men are never soft with womenfolk, As you and I ken to our cost: their love's A spark struck out of iron; and, while it chars The windlestraw, it leaves the coulter unscathed To plough fresh stubble.

Lucy: Well, you will be talking:

And doubtless you mean something, if I'd list

I'or guessing riddles. But it's time I went 'To tidy my hair

(Goes out of the door leading into the passage )

RACHEL It isn't tongues that set
The hardest riddles—I've guessed Adah's secret,
For all her chatter—but I'sther puzzles me.
She sat mumchance at breakfast, and scarcely glanced
At Angus when he spoke to her—I'ew women
Can keep their eyes off him—She must be stone.
And yet, there's fire in flint. Well, here she comes.
I'll see if I can strike a spark from her

Esther Burn enters quietly from the yard in her working clothes

You've had a long day of it.

ESTHER, Long enough

RACHEL A gey rough place for lasses, Windwhistle.

The master's a hard master

Estuer Ay, he's hard

But I've been used to work

RACHEL Still, it was rough.

Setting you picking stones the first day

Ечтиев

But masters should be hard

RACHEL You think so, lass?

It isn't every wench would say the same.

ESTHER I've known the other sort, that's over-easy With hired-girls.

RACHEL Ay? And so you judge it better . . .

Estrice A master should be master

True for you:

 $\Lambda_{3}$ ,

You've learnt the lesson: still it doesn't do

Esther: You mean?

RACHEL: Nothing: and you're the sort of lass, I warrant,

Can take good care of herself.

Esther: It's not myself

I'm fearful of, but . . . (Breaks off.)

RACHEL: Adah? Ay, she's tow

To flame, I'd fancy: that's why I'm warning you.

ESTHER: Warning? You think that . . .

RACHEL: Well, it's only fair

To caution bairns a fire is like to burn.

Esther: We'll leave, to-morrow.

RACHEL: Leave? You've taken leave

Of your wits already, woman, to talk so;

You can't go throwing up a place like that:

And, whether or no, why should you, now you're warned?

You might go further and fare worse. You can't

Be quit of danger till you're sodded down:

And, likely, you'd be running from one fire

Into another: for there'll aye be burning,

While there are men and women.

Esther: Seemingly

We've run from one fire slap into another.

RACHEL: You mean your last place?

Esther: Ay.

RACHEL: What happened, daughter,

To drive you from it?

Esther: That I cannot tell.

RACHEL Your sister, likely
Estrien Nay, she never knew.

I never let on to her why we'd to quit

RACHEL Well, anyway, at Windwhistle, I'd hazard, Your sister s safe enough a decent lad Is Alec and she's not the sort to take

The fancy of a man like but I in havering

Estura You mean that

RECTLE I mean nothing I'm just clashing For clashing's sake, like an ill sneckit gate

And you're no "whistle-and-I'll-come-to-thee-my-lad."

Esther I've no fear for myself but if harm come

To Adah, there'll be bloodshed RAUREL

Bloodshed, woman

You're crazy, surely

Estrier Ay, I'm well nigh crazed— Nigh driven desperate since my mother died, Chivvied from place to place. Why can't folk let Two decent lasses carn their bread in peace?

Why must men always pester

RACHEL Mercy me!
But I've struck out the sparks, and no mistake.
So that's the secret of the brooding eyes
And tight-shut lips? Lass, I was only trying
To see if I could kindle you and it seems
I'm like to burn my fingers, for my pains
I always was a one for playing with fire
Happen I'll burn the house about my ears,
Before I'm through. But I was only gabbing
You mustn't listen to my clatterjaw
I only

Adam Burn enters from the yard, and sinks wearily into a chair.

(To Adah): So, you're back?

ADAH: And trashed to death.

RACHEL: You've had a long day.

ADAH: Ay, and some folk seem

To fancy women are horses. I'm fair done:

But I'll not work another day like this.

And Esther there, she couldn't wait for me,

Though well enough she knew I was so dithered

I scarce could put one foot before the other.

RACHEL: The master's hard.

ADAH: Ay, but he'll meet his match,

Before I've done with him.

RACHEL: You fancy you . . .

You'll be the first that's ever been a match

For Angus: but, if you've a gosling's gumption,

You'll take things cannily, and not forget

Which side your bread is buttered on.

Adah: I've to meet

The man would scare me. I ken far too much Of men, I do.

RACHEL: You've never met an Earnshaw.

ADAH: Still, even Earnshaws are just men, I take it:

And—well, I fancy I can manage men.

RACHEL: You're talking like a fool. And whether or no,

The tea's just ready. There's water in the scullery For you to clean yourselves: I filled the basin,

And you'll find soap and towels. So, go your ways.

(Apan rives, and she and Esther go into the scullery together, when a sound of splashing is heard Presently Lacy Landshaw enters from the passage)

Lucy They're back?

RACHEI (taking the teapot from the hob). The wenches are, and fair trashed out.

Angus is hard

Angle Lannshaw enters, followed by Alec.

Anots Hard—and who says I'm hard?
Not you, Lucy, I warrant—you always swear
I'm over-easy with wenches—Any limmer
Can twist me round her finger—that's the song
You're singing me to sleep with every night

ESTHER and ADAH BURN enter from the scullery

Here's Adah, now—she doesn't say I'm hard? She's had an easy day

ADAH An easy day!
I'll never work another day like that

Axous True, true for I've been gently breaking

I don't drive fillies overhard at first
You'll learn what working means before the week's out.
But Esther's broken already, she doesn t waste
Her wind her withers are unwrung I reckon
She's ready for another day's work now

RACHEL She keeps her counsel, like Dick Dobson's nag,

Does Esther. When the galled jade doesn't wince, Best drive her cannily, and watch her eye.

ADAH: She's got no spirit; but he won't drive me.

Axgus: I won't?

You won't. ADAH:

Say that again: "You won't Axgus:

Drive me."

ADAH: You won't ... God knows, there'll be no need For driving! I thought . . . but you've a way with you. . . .

Angus: I've yet to find the filly I can't master:

So don't try on your flighty tricks with me.

RACHEL: Ay, son, but if you must drive hard, take care

It's not the quiet mare that breaks your neck.

Angus: The quiet mare? You mean . . .

Lucy: Stop yammering

Of mares and fillies-it's not over-nice To talk of women so-and let's have tea: It's getting cold.

Well, I must have a wash. ANGUS: Come, Alec lad, no use to stand there, gaping; She's got no eyes for you: p'raps when you've sluiced The muck off she may like your bonnie mug.

ALEC: You hold your tongue, or I'll . . .

(Breaks off.)

Well, razor-wits. ANGUS:

You'll what? Love's sharpening you; and at this rate You'll soon have edge enough to cut yourself.

RACHEL: And Angus aye likes playing with edged tools.

Angus And who would handle blunt? You cannot have Too keen a cutting edge

RACHEL True, when the haft's

In your own hand

Lucy Rachel, you're havering You know that Angus never lets anyone else

Handle his tools

RAUHEL Tools, whiles, turn in the hand

SCENE III

Scent The same, fire days later, on Sunday afternoon The kitchen is empty, but voices are heard in the scullery, and presently Lovy Earnshaw enters, carrying a trayful of newly washed dinner dishes, which she sets down on the table. As she begins to arrange them on the dresser, Rainel Larishaw follows with two wet towels which she hangs before the fire to dry

RACHEL A burnt bairn dreads the fire but a burnt woman,

It seems, will only shove her fist in further Well, little use my talking If you're bent On making a cinder of yourself, you've got to I can't prevent

Lucy I've got to do my duty
RACHEL Your duty—ay, we all must do our duty
They taught us that at school "England expects..."
How does it run? And then he clapt his spyglass

To his blind peeper? But you've two good eyes, And so, can see your duty plain before you: It takes me all my time, with spectacles; And I've mislaid them now.

Lucy: They're in the parlour.

RACHEL: Well, I'm just going there now to read my Bible.

Lucy: Your Bible—you! I wonder you've the face!
RACHEL: 'Deed, I'm none easy daunted: but little harm

In Bible-reading, surely? I look forward
The whole week long to Sunday afternoons,
And mastering a chapter. Well worth while
Cracking thon breakjaw names to get the kernel:
It always has a bite: and if you studied
The good book oftener, you'd ken more of husbands—
A deal of human nature in the Bible:
And, what with dwelling always among sheep,
And studying the Old Testament, I've learnt
No little about menfolk in my time—
Though it's not every ram's a Solomon.
Well, I'll away, and leave you to your duty:
And thank my stars I got mine over young,
And so can take things easy in my old age.

(Rachel Earnshaw doffs her apron, and goes out by the passage-door. Lucy Earnshaw, who has not been listening to her last words, sits down, and gazes into the fire with an abstracted air. Presently a door closes above: steps are heard on the stairs, and Esther Burn, dressed for going out in her

Sunday clothes, enters from the passage, and is crossing to the yard-door when Lucy EARNHAN looks up and speaks)

LULY Where are you bound for now?

Esther (stopping) I hardly ken

I was just thinking I would take a turn.

Lucy Ay, servant-lasses can go galliranting,
While mistresses must slave

ESTHER I've done my work.

Licy Happen And so, you're walking out alone? And where's your sister?

ESTHER She's not finished dressing.

Lucy And you can't wait till she's done titivating? Dressing! And you, prankt like a popinjay, While I'm still in my coarse apron. Some folk might Make bold to ask where the likes of you can find The money for such fakish flerds—not I! I wasn't born yesterday, though I am a wife—

Only an honest wife and I'm none curious

Esther I've worked to pay for every stitch I've on Lucy Worked? Happen' Don't you dare to look at me

Like that I'm mistress here, and won't let servants— Let alone a barefaced.

(Hesitates, dainted by the look in Estite's eyes, but begins to speak again, as Estite turns to go on her way)

Not so fast, my lass

I wan' to have a word with you

Estite 7 The word

You couldn't find just now?

Nay: I just want . . . Tarey: I was forgetting . . . 'Twas no Sunday word? ESTHER: Lucy: I want to talk to you for your own good. (Hesitates.) Esther: My good? Ay: but the thing I've got to say's Lucy: Not easily said by any decent wife: But-you ken why I sacked the other wenches? (Esther regards her steadily in silence.) Why don't you answer, when I speak to you? I'm mistress still; and I'll not be defied In my own house by any . . . ESTHER: You're mistress still . . . Lucy: What do you mean by "still," you . . . Your own word ESTHER: You're mistress, still; so I must answer you. Since I came here, I've heard some shameful gossip. Lucy: You've heard . . . Then let it be a warning to you. (Esther says nothing, but regards Lucy steadily.) You dare to look . . . Why don't you answer me? It's no good shamming deaf and dumb: you can't . . . ESTHER: What's there to say? You heard, then? It went home? Lucy: ESTHER: And so it's true, the gossip? I'd have thought You'd be the last to mention . . Lucy: You'd have thought! So, I'm to be taught manners by my servant? Servant! God knows, they're none of them my servants:

Rachel is right they're just my husband's Woman ! Esther. Lucy You call me "woman"? I'll teach you who it is You're calling "woman" I'm your mistress yet. Estura My mistress should rather die than . . .

Happen you're right. Lacy

But I, what can I do, when my own man . .

ESTHER I'm sorry

Sorry? Now you're mocking me. Lacs

ESTRER Mocking you? Nay!

Then I'll not have your pity Lucy

My stars, to think I married to be pitied By a loose-petticoat! Of all the brass! You think you can afford to pity me? Of all the bold-faced trollops! I ken your sort; You don't take me in with mum, sneaky ways, And staring like a silly I've got your measure. And I can tell you one thing, my fine lady-Your day will be a short one here, and when You're gone, I'll still be mistress of Windwhistle. And so you cannot say I haven't warned you,

(Estura stands, steadily regarding Lacy)

What are you waiting for

EXTHER You've done?

Lacr I've done

And now I may have time to go and dress, Though I can't rig myself in such fine feathers As my own servants I'd think shame to wear

(She breaks off, daunted by Esthen's eyes, takes off her apron, makes a show of folding it with deliberation, and puts it in a drawer of the dresser; then goes out by the passage-door. Esther stands for a moment, as though dazed, looking after her; then turns slowly towards the yard-door, but stops, startled, as she sees Angus Earnshaw, standing in the doorway, watching her. He steps in, and crosses to the hearth, taking some strands of whipcord out of his pocket. Esther goes on her way; but as she reaches the door Angus calls to her softly.)

Angus: Esther!

(Esther stops, but without turning or speaking.)
I want you. Where are you away to?

To Lovers' Leap? Ay, thon's the place to sit On a fine afternoon—but, not alone.

Just bide a moment, lass: I want you here. I've got to make a whip-lash, and need someone To keep a hold of the cord-ends, while I plait—Someone who'll not let go. You've got a grip. I mind you hanging on when that nowt, Alec, Tripped, and let go the lead, as he was taking The red bull—or the red bull taking him. . . .

(Esther turns and comes slowly towards him, holding out her hand for the cords, which he gives her.)

What fingers for a wench! I shouldn't care
To feel them at my thrapple, or have a welt
Across the jaw from such a neave as that.
But you're no scarting spitfire, letting fly
When a man least expects it. You've no need:
You've got too good a grip; and can afford

To bide your time, as I'm learning to my cost
But that will keep until

This won't take long
And then we'll go together
I've a word
I want to say to you, with no one by—
Not that I mind eavesdroppers
I'm the master
In my own house, and brook no interference
But it's as we'll

Esther Say all you've got to say

Now When I walk, I walk alone

Ancus You do?

By God, that's so! I never kenned a lass Gan her own gait so quietly it's that—

Just that, has done for me

Estrer Done ?

Angus Oh, you ken—You must, when I But it will keep till we're

You must, when I Be Ferched anug together

Estree Say all you've got to say

Here I'll not hearken to a single word

You can't speak openly

Angus So, you defy me?

Then I'll say all right out

Esther Best hold your peace

Now . . .

Ancus So you've changed your mind?

Esther Now and for ever

Ances. You threaten me? God's truth, I've never let

A woman talk to me like that and I'll

You're the first wench that's ever wanted to— Leastways, no other's dared. But you've defied me

To speak out now and I'll not 'bate a word-

Though why should there be need of words between us? I'm used to my way: and devil all I care
Who hears what I've to say: they may as tite
Learn now, as later. 'Twill be little news
To them that ken me. Nay, they'll only judge
It's the old story: they'll not understand
The difference: it will taste the same to them,
Turning it on their tongues. You're just a wench
Like any other to them: their piddling minds
Can't take your measure, or mine. I've never been
A secret man: I've taken my own track,
But always tramped it openly—never cared
A tinker's curse for all their tittle-tattle:
So, likely, you'll have heard . . .

Esther: Ay! to your shame . . .

Angus: Shame-what should Angus Earnshaw have to do

With shame? Shame's only for poor windlestraws
In trousers, secret lechers. I've never been
A hole-in-the-corner lover. I've some pride
I take my own road; and I'll step it out,
Shameless, to hell, if that be where it lead to.
I've never cared....

Esther: For all you've trampled on—The women's lives destroyed.

Angus: Straws in the burning!
What recks the fire of flimsy wisps of twitchgrass,
When it's hungry for real fuel? And now, I've found—
I've found my mate. I'm sick of petticoats:
1 want a woman: and, at last, I've got her.
Shame—what have such as we to do with shame!

for a tryst, and crosses the kitchen towards the yard-door)

Angles Well, there is no accounting For tastes—what say you, Adah? Esther swears She'd rather stop and muck the byre, than take A stroll.

ADAH (stopping and turning) The byre—on Sunday afternoon?

She's crazy !

(Esture goes quietly out by the passage-door )

ANGLE: So I'm thinking but I've tamed

A madder mare, before to-day

Adan You've tamed?

You've not been bullying her?

Angus She took her choice
Adah Well, it gets over me

Why anyone should choose But she's pigheaded.

When once she gets a notion We'd to leave The last place without wages, just because

(Breaks off.)

It's not your orders?

Axons Because?

ADAH Oh, don't ask me! I only know She got some maggot in her head and naught Would satisfy her but a moonlight flitting

Angus Ay, ay, and you?

ADAH Oh, I'd to do her bidding

For peace' sake and I couldn't say I'm sorry,

As things have turned out, that we made the change Angle As things have turned out? And you'd do her hidding

Like a good bairn again, if she . .

No fear! ADAH: I gan my own gait from this on. ANGUS: Ay, ay, But you're the spirited wench, and no mistake! You left without your wages then? You've got . . . ADAH: Scarce a brass farthing to bless ourselves with, till vou Choose to fork out. Ay, ay-yet she would quit? ANGUS: She's got some spirit, she has, the stubborn jade! ADAH: Still, it gets over me why anyone Should choose to muck the byre. You bullied her. You should think shame. You'd better not try on Those games with me. What are you smiling at? Angus: Just wondering which you'd choose—mucking a byre, Or walking out to Lovers' Leap with me? ADAH: With you? So that's... But I can't stand here chattering. I'm late already. ANGUS: Come, which would you choose? ADAH: Small need to ask. (Turns to go.) ANGUS: I'll follow in a moment. Adan (stopping): You'll follow? Nay, I never said I'd go. Angus: You'd rather muck the byre? No byres for me ADAH: On Sunday: and you cannot badger Adah, Though Esther lets you bully her. She's too meek:

Angus: So?
Adah: And, anyhow,

But I'd not stand it.

I've promised Alec I'd walk out with him

Axcus You'd rather?

ADAR Well, we're trysted for to-day .

And he's been waiting

Angus Ay, you've kept him dangling, Kicking his heels, until he's nearly hacked Thon gate to splinters That's the way to treat them You ken a thing or two

ADAH I must be stepping

(As she speaks, Estilia, in her working clothes, appears in the passage-dooruay, and pauses for a moment. Angus sees her, but Adaii does not.)

ANCUS (to Adall) So, I'm forsaken?

Adan Happen, if you behave,

Next Sunday

(Angles starts forward, as if to snatch a kiss, but Annu cludes him )

ADAII Shame! And you, a married man!

(ADAM runs out, laughing, but ANGLS does not follow Estmen waits till she is out of hearing, then walks deliberately up to ANGLS where he stands in the middle of the room, looks him straight in the eyes, and speaks slowly and with difficulty)

Estmen I'll meet you at the Lovers' Leap to-night.

And a (starting) You mean . . . But why've you changed?

Esther I can't afford

To wear my Sunday gown for mucking byres.

Ances But you've no call to do that now Why, lass, I only jested

ESTHER: Only!

Angus: You didn't fancy

I meant it, eh? Well, you ken better now.

Still, if you hadn't . . . but you've learnt your lesson.

ESTHER: I've learnt my lesson.

Angus: Ay, I knew I'd tame you.

ESTHER: And Adah?

Axgus: So, that pricked? What should I want

With thon young flirtigig, when I've got you?

Still, if you hadn't! She will have no games!

I'd teach her what her pretty tricks are worth:

id teach her what her pretty tricks are worth:

And when I'd done with her, she'd change her tune—

Her bragging trumpet blown, she'd whimper and whine

Like a broken-winded wheezy concertina,

She would, the doxy: and you'd be to blame.

But Alec's welcome to her, now that you . . .

The moon will be up by ten o'clock to-night.

We'll sit on the crag together, and look down

On the glinting lough below—a dizzy drop,

If you let go. They say two lovers leapt

Together, in old days; and didn't strike

The water, as they'd doubtless counted on doing.

They fell among the boulders at the crag-foot-

And their two bodies, smashed to smithereens!

But you and I are not the dizzy sort:

We'll perch there snug together—a risky perch For lovers; and that's why it suits my mettle.

(Esther turns from him, and walks slowly towards the yard-door.)

Angus: Where are you bound for now?

Esther: To muck the byre.

Angus God t but I like your spirit, you're my marrow

(Esther goes out, without another word Argus gazes after her, then, turning, sees his mother standing in the passage-doorway, watching him)

RACHEL (coming into the kitchen) I've just been reading about Sisera

She was a game one, Jael

Angus What's that, old raven-

Croaking of bloody stories?

(A quick step is heard in the passage, and Lucy Earnshaw hurries in, twisting up her hair as she comes)

Lucy Well, I never!
What's Esther after in her working clothes?
I was just tidying my hair for tea,

And saw her, in the glass, crossing the yard Acous She's gone to muck the byre

Lccv This afternoon?

On Sunday? Well, I never heard the like And only now, dressed up to the nines and all For gallivanting! I can't understand What's taken her—unless you made her do it? She sauced you, and you bid her?

Angus
Ay, I bid her
Lucy Well, I must say I like a man that's master
Of his own farm You're that, and no mistake
You'll stand no lip from any hind, not you
And that's the way to treat the baggages
Eh, Rachel, but you don't know everything.

You've been mistaken—that slut, dangerous!

RACHEL: A burnt bairn dreads the fire. . . . But,

thank the Lord

I'm nothing but a looker-on these days.

SCENE IV

Scene: An attic at Windwhistle on Sunday night.

The wooden trunk stands open in the middle of the room; and Esther Burn, still in her working dress, folds her Sunday gown and other garments, and packs them into it. Presently a step is heard on the stairs: the door opens, and Adah Burn enters, still in her outdoor clothes.

ADAH: I'm fairly trashed.

Esther: Where ever have you been?

ADAH: Stravaging over hill and dale with Alec.

ESTHER: You missed your tea.

ADAH: I missed it, and much else

I minded missing a deal more than tea.

ESTHER: What, Adah?

ADAH: Ah, you'd like to know, you would?

But that's to come.

Esther: To come?

ADAH: How I'll get through

The week, I cannot think: but, anyway,

It's something to look forward to. Please God,

I'll waste no more fine Sundays!

Esther: What's your meaning?

Adah: That would be telling. You're too curious, Esther.

Estura Alec's a decent lad.

Aban A decent nowt!

ESTHER He's fond of you

ADAM Ay, ay, he's fond enough But others I was never meant to waste

ESTHER And he'd be faithful.

ADAH Ay, a safety-match-

Strikes only on the box!

Esther You might do worse,

ADAH Or better I was never meant to waste Myself on a guff like Alec Mercy me! We've traiked and traiked, the blessed afternoon, About the fells, like followers at a funeral, Muter than tombstones Estura You?

Adail I've little enough

To say to boys, though I can talk with men.

And, when the gaby opened his prim hips,

Twas just to yammer about whaups and pecsweeps.

As if it wasn't had enough to have

The silly creatures skirling all about us,

Making my blood run cold—and thou lone fells—

I hate the fells I wouldn't bide a week,

If it wasn't for

Estrier Adah, you want to leave?

Adah Leave now! What ever are you up to there—

Not packing, surely? Lord, have mercy on us! There's not to be another moonlight flitting,

Without a penny-piece?

Estime I'm packing up
To leave in the morning and you're coming, too,

Adan: I'm coming?

Esther: You are coming, lass, with me.

ADAH: I'll see you further! Likely, I'd leave now! And just because you've quarrelled with the master.

You were a fool to let him bully you, Esther,

And make you muck the byre. I've never yet

Let any man bully me. I wouldn't do

A hand's turn on a Sunday afternoon

For any master: I would sooner die. . . .

Though, I don't know-happen, I would, for one . . .

Might even relish being bullied, who can tell?

I like a man to be a man, God knows.

But you'll not take offence at such as thon,

And throw up a good place?

Esther: I go to-morrow.

Adam: I see—I see: he's given you the sack—

You've lost your place?

Esther: I've lost my place.

Adah: You have?

But I have not lost mine: I've got no quarrel With Angus Earnshaw: he's not bid me quit.

Esther: Nor me.

Adah: Well, I'm fair flummoxed! First, you say . . .

Esther: And last, we're through with Windwhistle to-night.

ADAH: By crikey, no! I'll not be dragged around The countryside to please you. Leave again Without a penny-piece, when I have sweated Myself fair sick to earn a bit of brass To buy myself some decent duds with—nay,

Not this time, Esther! If you're set on flitting, Nothing will turn you, I ken well enough You've always been pig-headed: but you'll go, And leave me here

Esturn I'll never leave you here.
I've always taken care of you. I promised . . .

ADAH You promised mother? Ay, I ken but she Is in her grave and I'm a bairn no longer A deal too much you took on yourself—you promised, Promised for me! You've always taken care! You mammied me, and I was good to cuddle: You aye liked dollies, and I was your doll—Something to wash and dress, and slaver with kisses, And bribe with lollipops to do your bidding But I'm a bairn no longer—If it's brats You're wanting, better wed and bear your own I'm a grown woman, and I'll gan my gait, Without your leave Estuer Adah!

ADAH Ay, Adah, Adah! You're not the only one that calls her "Adah" You're not her mistress now she's got a master.

Estiles You poor, poor lass you little know what you say!

ADAH I know. Because he happens to be wed, You think I should. But I ken what I'm after. I'm no man's slave I've taught him that, already.

Esther Adah, have you forgotten mother's life?

Adah Why should I not forget? She's in her grave,
While I'm a breathing woman with my own life
To live—ay, live! not toddle and tumble through,

Tied fast to a dead woman's apron-strings. But I've forgotten nothing.

Esther: Then you mind

How father . . .

ADAH: Nay, you shall not breathe a word
Against him: he'd a right to go his way.
You never were his favourite—much too like
Your mother, for his taste: and, after all,
Mother had had her chance. She couldn't hold him—

Not her fault, happen, poor soul—nor his fault, either; Folk are made different. He'd his life to live:

And I'm my father's daughter.

ESTHER: And you remember The mother of the lass who came the day They buried father?

ADAH: Ay, because a trollop Had made a hole in the water, like a fool, Her mother needs must come and make a scene.

Esther: She was heartbroken, Adah, that her girl Had died a shameful death: and it was father Had brought shame on her—driven her to death, To die of shame.

ADAH: She should have died of pride To think a man like father . . . Anyway, She'd had her time: and I'll have mine before . . . And I'd just scorn to die of shame, whatever Should happen. Nay, no Lovers' Leap for me! Time, and enough, to call the coroner, When I die desperate.

ESTHER: Addie, you little know What you are saying—you little know . . .

ADAH I ken

His wife's a fool—and fools must take fools' luck.
If dolls get in my way, well, dolls are brittle
When there's a clash, it won't be Adah Burn
Gets broken—nay, nor Angus Earnshaw, either

ESTHER Adah, you'd never give yourself to him? You'd never throw yourself away? You've heard

ADAII Tattle enough about the other wenches Esther And still

ADAH I'll take my chance I'm not afraid Esther Then I must tell you, Addie . .

ADAR Not a word?

Nay, I'll not heed I've listened all my life It's my turn now for talking and I ken Twould suit somebody fine to keep me a bairn.

Esther 'Twould suit .

ADAH I ken you're jealous of me, Esther
Estner Jealous!

ADAH Ay, Madam Mum, so prim and proper I ken your sort. That's why we left the last place You thought the master fancied me and so. We needs must quit. But I've no quarrel with you For that. I couldn't abide old ginger-whiskers, Myself, though, if I'd had a liking for him, I'd have seen you straked, before I would have left. And Angus—ay, I've seen you look at him! No woman ever looked in a man's eyes. Lake that, unless. I wasn't born blind, Esther. Would you have knuckled down this afternoon. At the bidding of any other man than him? I didn't catch on then, but now I twig.

I'd do the same myself: and, though you're jealous. I cannot blame you: we can't help ourselves: We're fated, Esther. When I first set eyes On Angus at the fair, I knew my master; And fidgeted until I caught his eye: And, once he saw us there, the trick was done. He didn't shilly-shally: he knew his mind. Blame you? If I thought you or anyone Stood in my way, I'd stick at nothing, woman: And I'd not leave here for ten thousand pounds; Not if you begged me on your bended knees, And mother's ghost—nay, not if my own fetch Should stand before me now and give me warning. If you were lying on your deathbed, Esther, And begged me now, I couldn't.

Esther:

Not if I

Stood with the hangman's rope about my neck?

Adah: The hangman's rope? You're mad! He said you were—

Said he'd tamed madder mares than you. You're crazed

With jealousy. I'm sorry. I can't help it:
We cannot help ourselves: we're never asked:
And I don't know I want to be made different,
Since Angus fancies . . . though it's hard on you.
But one must suffer always: and you've had;
Your chance: we started equal; but you let Him bully you: and now he thinks you're just Another Lucy. Still, if you'd been the one
He'd fancied—but it won't bear dwelling on—
I'd have stopped short of nothing.

ESTHER.

You, my aster,

My only

ADAH Nay, but we're not sisters now .

We're just two women with a man betwixt us
I'd have stopped short of nothing—so it's well
Things took the turn they did—Yet I don't wonder
You're daft with disappointment.—I'd go dotty - .

ESTREE Oh, if you only knew! Adah, that man . . . ADAH (putting her fingers in her ears) Nay, I'll not listen to a word against him!

If you so much as breathe a syllable, Twill take me all my time to keep my hands

From ramming your spite back down your throat to choke you

Hest get to bed, and try to sleep it off You're over-wrought, working to-day and all,

After six days on end at picking stones

However I'd get through another week,

If I hadn't something to look forward to!

I'm just bone-tired with traiking moor and moss

With that fond gowk Whaups! I'm fair daft for sleep

And you'll think better of it by the morning,

And not be set on leaving

Esther I'll not leave you,

Adam. That's right. You know, lass, I'd do snything

I could to humour you but I couldn't go,

Though it were certain death to bide

Esther. It's worse

Than death, the new to --

Adah: Then I will pay it.

What must be, must.

Esther: Ay, what must be, must be.

SCENE V

Scene: Lovers' Leap, the crest of a wave-shaped whinstone crag sloping steeply on the one side to the height of two hundred feet, and falling in a sheer precipice on the other to a little lough. The slope is covered with coarse bent, but the face of the crag consists of naked pillars of basaltic rock. It is twelve o'clock on Sunday night, and the moon shines brightly in the unclouded heavens. Angus Earnshaw stands on the ridge against the sky, gazing across the fells. Presently Esther Burn is seen slowly climbing the slope. As she approaches, Angus turns and catches sight of her; but stays where he is until she is within a few feet of him.

Angus: You've come.

Esther (looking at him fixedly): I've come.

And kept me kicking my heels

Two hours until you chose to? Ten, I fixed.

I've not been used to be kept waiting.

Esther: Nay?

Angus: Why do you look like that? But we'll not quarrel,

Now that you have come. I knew well you'd come.

Esther: You knew, and yet . . . -

Angus Ay, when you said you would 'Though you ken the fashion to treat a man like me, To keep me hangry and I like you better For taking your own time You're mettlesome: You're got my spirit, surely and it's fitting Kestrel should mate with kestrel

Letter I took my time

And yet, you waited?

Axous Why, my bird, what else?

I kenned you'd come, when you had given your word.

As sure as fate

ESTHER As sure as fate

Angus As sure

As death,

Esther As sure as death

Anous Ay, once you'd promised You're not the flighty sort you know your mind You'll do what you've set out to do—go through With any job you've put your hand to

Estufu Ay

Anoth. No turning you, when once your heart's in it.

ESTHER. My heart!

Angus Ay, Esther, lass, you'd never have come,

If your heart had not been in it Let's sit down A rare night, this

(Esther moves away from him to the edge of the precipice, and looks over)

Angles Nay, not so might the edge! You might—but you are not the dizzy sort

So you can stand there, calmly looking down. That's where the lovers leapt—a devilish drop! And I could almost take the leap with you; Though it would be a fearful ending, Esther, To smash on the boulders.

Esther (moaning): Oh!

Angus: But you and I Can stand together on the edge of danger, Clear-headed—mates!

(He moves towards Esther with outstretched arms.)

ESTHER (turning sharply): You dare to touch me—you!

Angus: Dare—and why not? I didn't come here, my lass—

We didn't come here, I reckon, to spend the night On the crag-top, a pair of standing-stones?

ESTHER: You came—I came: but only one of us Will go alive from here.

Angus (startled): You mean . . . Nay, lass, I'll hold you: and you shall not jump.

ESTHER: You dare
To lay a hand on me! Nay, I'll not jump,
And leave you living, to work your wicked will
On other women.

Angus: So it's I must leap:
And you're the one's to go alive from here?
You've settled it? I never knew your like:
You've got the nerve. By God! you make me mad

To have you, and you know it: that's your game.

Esther You've not the courage to die of your own will

Angus Only the pluck to live. Do you suppose Any hen harrier, once he's got his claws in, And settled down to glut himself, lets go, To try and wring his own neck in a tree-fork? To die—when I have never lived till now!

ESTHER You'll die and I'm prepared to pay the price

Angus 'The price? You'd murder me, and hang for it?

You fancy I'd let you? But you're jesting, lass?
ESTHER God knows which one will murder, which will hang

Ancus So we're to fight it out, the two of us, Like haggards in mid-air?—for you're no kestrel, Pouncing on grubs and shrews: it's heronshaws You fly at, Esther and I like your spirit You're game, but I'd not lay a finger on you Look, I'll stand here and you can send me spinning.

(Angus poises himself on the very edge of the erag, with his back to the precipite)

You daren't? I thought not You would do a murder, And pay the price? An easy price for you They seldom hang a woman nowadays, As well you know

ESTHER I didn't know I meant
To pay the price

Ances That's true you're not the sort
To want to kill a man, and then get off
Scot-free, but, whether or no, 'twould be manslaughter.

I kill a woman here—and it is murder:
She kills me—and it's done in self-defence:
That's justice, nowadays. But, come, my haggard,
Enough of flighting. You know you never meant—
And, if you did, I like you better for it.
You're the first woman that's stood up to me.
You're my true mate, and put me on my mettle:
And now, by God, I'll tame you! Ay, you'll pay
The price! I'm just stark crazy for . . .

(Angus makes a sudden swoop on Esther. She flings out an arm to ward him off, and catches him under the jowl. He reels back, hangs a moment on the edge, then topples over with a cry. Esther stands, as if turned to stone; then sinks to the ground with a shuddering moan, and sits, motionless, gazing across the fells with unseeing eyes. Presently, a figure is seen hurrying up the slope, and Adah Burn appears, half-dressed, and with her hair streaming behind her. Seeing Esther crouching in the grass, she rushes up to her, and seizes her roughly by the arm.)

Adam: You're here, alone? I thought I heard . . . My God!

You not alone—say that you're not alone?

I wakened in the night, to find you gone—
And then I saw it all as plain as day:

It shivered through me like a flash of wildfire—
Your words . . . You said . . . My God! why didn't I see

The murder in your eyes, when you were talking,
So that I might have saved . . Oh, woman, say ...
Say you've not murdered ... Say he never came!
You tempted him, that you might murder him—
But he's not come yet . and I'm still in time?

ESTHER He's lying at the crag foot.

Anal And you killed him?

I might have known-jou, with your icy eyes, And your cold blooded realous. You field! To stand there, jesting of the hangman's rope-And all the while you meant but you shall hame You'll not escape I'd drag you to the gallows-Murderess, murderess! As, I'll cry it out To all the world! To do it in cold blood ! Hot-blooded killing I could understand And to think I've half a mind, myself, to At addressed as you could do be about A man like Angus! There never was a man Lake him and now he's broken. Pits me Tell me I'm dreaming, Esther waken me It's just a nightmare take me in your arms, And wake me with a kiss, and comfort me Esture (in a low rose) Addie!

Ann You fiend! Don't touch me! And to think

You were my sister—and now! Oh, Angus, Angus!

(She sinks to the ground in a half secon, and hes moaning Esturn does not stir Another figure appears, climbing the slope, and Lect Earnshaw tods up, paning, and sees Adan)

Lucy: I guessed as much. I heard the backdoorsneck.

For all your stealthy tricks. I've never slept

A wink this blessed night on my lone bed:

And when I heard the door, I sat upright

In time to see you, sneaking through the yard.

Then I was sure. It's more than flesh and blood

Can bear. (Catching sight of Esther) My sakes! Two wenches! Where's my husband?

ADAH: Your husband, woman? I ken naught of

I only know my man lies at the crag-foot.

Lucy: Your man?

Adah: Ay, Angus.

Lucy: Yours!

ADAH: All mine, all mine—

And Esther's murdered him.

Lucy: What, Angus dead!

ADAH: Dead—dead: and she shall hang.

Lucy: I'll not believe

That any wench could murder such a man.

She tempted him-God knows, I ken too well

He needed little tempting: and he slipped

On the crag's edge—he always was foolbardy:

And now she wants to say she murdered him

To save her virtue, and so get sympathy.

But I shall tell the truth out: she shan't brag,

The slut, she's done away with such as him— The like of Angus, murdered by a doxy!

Ay, but the world shall learn the truth: I'll have

My husband righted!

(As she speaks, RACHEL EARNSHAW, who has been toiling up the slope unobserved, approaches . and catches the last words.)

Spoken like a wife! RACHELY But, has the world gone watty, that you stand, Screeching on crag-tops to the moon at midnight Like witches, you and your wenches? When I waked, I felt the house was empty and so I rose. And went from room to room and only Alec Was sleeping sound and then I saw folk running-Two light-heels running it like hare and hounds Across the fell and, being a sport, I followed And so, there's three here? I saw only two Where's Angus? He's a night-bird and I fancied . . . But, happen, three ADAH He's lying at the crag-foot. And Esther's RACHEL Killed him? Never say she's killed him? She had the pluck? I never had the pluck . . I mind now, she said "bloodshed" but I fancied She was just seeing red I little dreamt . . In his hot lust she killed him-in his pride, Rejoicing like a hon in his strength! I never had the courage—though I've loathed Men's ways with women killed him, and sits there, Proud as a queen in some old Bible story Esther, say you? Nay, Judith in the tent . ADAH She is a murderess and she'll hang RACHEL Shame, wench !

(To Estines) You've done a bloody deed and you must suffer.

For pipes and timbrels have gone out of fashion:
You've killed my son; and I should curse you for it—

But, well, you've got to live, so where's the need For cursing? And he's dead, past cure of curses. And who am I to blame you, when I've gripped, Ay, many times, the knife-haft in my neave, Myself?—though I'd not pluck to put an end to . . . And now, father and son! And only Alec, Slumbering in his bed—the bed he'll die in Easily: no wild stirk or mankeen heifer, Seeing red, will cut off Alec in his prime: He'll see his children's children at Windwhistle. The world was made for slow-wits; and their seed Inheriteth the earth. And Angus lies, Dashed to destruction by the fire of life That blazed within him, only to destroy him. . . . And once, I'd weep, if he but cut a finger! But you, whose hand . . . there's no escape for you: They'll never string you up: they seldom hang A woman nowadays.

Esther (starting up): Ay, he said that.

RACHEL: He said that, did he?

Esther: I'd forgotten that.

(Esther runs to the edge of the crag and peers over.)

RACHEL: Hold her-she'll fall!

Adah: Not she: she's peeping down,

And gloating over him.

(Esther draws herself to her full height; stands rigid for a moment; and then plunges over the precipice. The three women stand gazing at the spot, spell-bound.)

RACHEL Escaped! Escaped!

She's had the pluck to gan her own gait—ay!

(Turning to ADAH) You fool, she's done you!

Anam (sinking in a heap with a wail) Ay, she's gone to him

RACHEL Both broken—and they might have been such mates,

And bred such burns, if they'd not met too late. The waste of it!

Leer (m a dazed roce) She stood right up, and leapt

RACHEL Froud as a queen

Lacy She stood right up, and leapt

But I ii not have it said, she murdered him,

And then took her own time, and killed herself

That was no ending for a man like him

RACHEL You'd make a story—say they leapt together?

Luci Twould be more like my Angus.

RACHEL Sure enough,

Reprould make a pretty tale, the Lovers' Leap!

Men's wa,

Proud as a .

Esther, say ye

ADAH She is

RACHEL

(To Esther)

must soff

GANGRELS

RED ROWAN

PERSONS

Weazel, an old horse-coper
Sim Jim
Habeneels
Red Rowan, an old noman.
Blackadder
Wettle
Albert Edward Higgs
(of London)

A discontinuous disco

RED ROWAN

Scene: A horse-coper's camp near Yetholm, on the Border. It is a fine evening in late September, and Weazel, Slim Jim, Hareheels, Blackadder and Nettle lie about the fire on which their supper is cooking in a pot slung from a forked stake. To the left, at the back, is a muggers' cart, seen end on, with an arched canvas tilt. Red Rowan stands near it, looking down on the company round the fire.

RED ROWAN (to BLACKADDER): You, telling fortunes, you—a chit like you,

Sneaking my customers with your saucy eyes

And fleeching flum! A deal you ken of fortunes—

Cheating the gonerels with your jookery-pawkry!

You should think shame, to rook them of their a earnings.

BLACKADDER: Well, I could tell your fortune, anyhow,

And free of charge.

RED ROWAN: My fortune!

BLACKADDER: Ay, no need

To rob your stocking to cross my palm.

RED ROWAY: You dare!

No one has ever told Red Rowan's fortune.

What's the world coming to! Why in my day . . .

BLACKADDER Your day? The day before the flood I take it?

The world's been washed since then

You jezebel! RED ROWAN

I'll teach you . . .

Ay, and time to take to teaching. BLACKADDER

When you're past the doing

Past . . . But I ken too RED ROWAN

Who 'tis encourages you-the poor old dobby,

Sporting the gaudy neckerchiefs you buy him With the brass you've cheated me out of rooking pigeons.

To peacock Weazel into a holy-bizen With red and yellow chokers, when it's time

He should be wearing black for his own funeral!

WEAZEL You mind your business

And it's not my business RED ROWAN When a young slut buys fairings for my man?

In my day

Your day's over WEAZEL

Ay-and yours? RED ROWAY

WEALFI A man's day's never over till he's straked RED ROWS While a fresh petticoat, you mean . Just so

Naught left for you now, Grannie, but WEAZEI NETTLE

HAREHFFLS And so Blackadder bought that kerchief, saying prayers.

did she f

BLACKADDER She did let's hear what you've to say about it.

RED ROWAN: Ay, Hareheels, my fine lurcher, you're cut out

By that old dog. Your doxy . . .

HAREHEELS: Hold your jaw,

You randy! You look after your own man;

And I'll . . .

BLACKADDER: You'll?

Nettle: Nay, but Hareheels mustn't quarrel

With Weazel's leavings, when it's all he'll get.

SLIM JIM: A bare shank-bone!

NETTLE: Ay, Grannie fares the best:

She's got a braw young fancy-man. Those two . . .

SLIM JIM: A cuckoo, mated to a carrion-crow!

HAREHEELS: I'd see the hag to hell . . .

Weazel: Now, no bad language.

A little pleasant chaff among old friends

Is well enough, and helps to pass the time:

But I won't let a lady be insulted:

And, Hareheels, lad, you should respect grey hairs.

RED ROWAN: Grey hairs!

Weazel: Ay, lass, the flame's gone out of yours—Red-rowan turned to old-man's-beard.

RED ROWAN: Old man's!

Weazel: A bonnie flare it was, when you were young:

I've never known a fierier poll: but ashes

Are the end of every camp-fire; and the blithest Burns out the quickest.

RED ROWAN: Ay, yet you may find A spark still smoulders, hot beneath the ash. Old mau's! And you're a nice young man to talk,

With a pow like a dandehon-clock, half-blown.

And who'll respect grey hairs, when an old man lets

Himself be made a fool of by a slut

With a poll like a tar-brush?

Weazel Dandelion-clocks
Whiles take the fancy of wenches—"This day, someday . . "

RED ROWAN Ay, till they've puffed them bald and you forget

How the game ends it's "This day, someday—never!"
WEAZEL I'll take my chance When the old fire's burnt out.

It's time to strike the camp rain-puddled ash.
Won't waim an old man's bones

RED ROWAN You'll let that trollop

Make a mommet of you?

BLACKADDER Leave me out of it,
The two of you, if you must vent your minds
In radgy slack. I'll not be parcelled out
To any man If I've a turn for Harcheels,
He'll serve my turn and, if I fancy Weazel,
He'll be my fancy man so, there's an end

Sum Jim How about little Jim?

NETTIE You dare to monkey .

BLACKADDER End did I sav? There'll never be a

BLACKADDER End, did I say? There'll never be an end

While there's a man can striddle a horse

Nettle You dare

To monkey with Jim!

BLACKADDIR I'll leave Slim Jim to you He's got what he deserves and I'd not rob you

•

Of your one chance. You and Red Rowan fancy
There are no other men in the world for me
Than Weazel, Hareheels and Slim Jim. Who knows
What callant may be galloping even now
To swing me to his saddle?

RED ROWAN (to WEAZEL): You hear the baggage? You'll let . . .

BLACKADDER: He'll let? You'll let? Your reign is done:

You've queened it long enough: I'm mistress now: And don't you dare to turn your tongue on me—Nay, nor your eyes: you cannot play the witch On me: my eye's a match for any eye.

I'm nothing daunted by an old wife's glower;
So, save your evil eye for scaring bairns,
And screwing sixpences from nowts in trousers.

RED ROWAN: A sump of puddled ash! Yet, in my day . . .

Hark, jezebel: your fire is bonnie enough; But you'll burn out someday: and then you'll find What men are.

BLACKADDER: Happen: but while I burn, I'll burn: And men may find they're only faggots to feed My fire.

RED ROWAN: Ay, ay; and so I thought at your age. My eye was once as bright, my breasts as full . . .

BLACKADDER: And as for women . . . Oh, but you have ridden

Us wenches hard, and lashed us with your tongue: But I'm in the saddle now—your turn to smart! I've slutted for you long: but I'm no bairn now

For you to bray half-silly with your neave .

Whazel Who bangs the bairn must age look out for bangs

When the hempy's old enough to handle the broomstick

BLACKADDER When you've an arm like mine, old spindlesbanks,

Then you can make me do your bidding now You'll slut for me and as for Weazel .

Weazer Ay,

Blackadder is the filly for my money

RED ROWAY Well, if you're set on breaking your old neck

Riding Black Beauty to the devil, no use

For me to waste my wind I'd better leave you

To manage her yourself, and wish you joy

I'll just turn in, for I've no mind to clarty

My manners, swapping compliments with such

A muckbut

BLACKAPDER So?

Sum Jim The queen is dead long live .

HARFHFELS I'm blasted if I'll

Weazel Not a doubt of it

But keep it to yourself, unless you want. To hoof it Let Blackadder tip the wink

She doesn't like your language, and you'll scoot.

RED ROWAN The poor, blind dobby!

Nerrus Well, anyway, he's master.

Though we've got a brand-new mistress, scemingly But she needn't think she's going to boss

Weazer

You'll do

Blackadder's bidding.

NETTLE: I'll . . .

WEAZEL: You'll take your hook-

You and Hareheels, if I've another word

From either.

RED ROWAN: Kiss the dust, the pair of you;

And let her trample . . .

SLIM JIM: Time, grannie, you were creeping

Into your lonesome bed: and don't forget

To say your prayers.

RED ROWAN: I'll save my breath: you're all

Past praying for.

SLIM JIM: Good-night, and sweet repose,

And it's all the bed to-night, and all the clothes!

Weazel: You young folk are too hard. A little chaff

Hurts no one, but . . .

(Weazel breaks off, with a shake of the head, as Red Rowan climbs into the cart, and disappears behind the curtain of the tilt. A moment after Albert Edward Higgs, a podgy tramp, enters stealthily behind the company round the fire, unnoticed. He stands eyeing the group, and looking round the camp: then, snuffing the fumes from the pot with relish, he speaks, as if to himself, in a soft, wheezy voice.)

ALBERT EDWARD: And such a lovely mare!

(They all turn their heads to look up at him: but he still stands with rapt eyes, as if contemplating something at a distance. His back is to the cart. Presently, a corner of the till is lifted, and Red Rowan peers out at the unconscious tramp)

WEAZEL Hullo! What's this?

NETTLE Blackadder, here's your callant

Come galloping to you on Shanks's mare

WEAZEL Ay, that's about the only nag, I'd wager,

He's any knowledge of

ALBERT EDWARD These blinking eyes

Never saw the like of her

NETTLE Blackadder?

ALBERT EDWARD Style!

And, as for action—talk of Rotten Row

Weazel What's the old geezer gabbing about?

Albert Edward A spanker!

The king's coach-horses aren't in it

Weazel Squat, old sport;

And let us know what maggot's worrying you

ALBERT EDWARD Such form-such elegance | And to be had

Just for the slipping of a knot

WEAZEI (starting to his feet) What's that?

Speak up, old gent

(The others rise quietly, and cluster about the tramp)

ALBERT EDWARD To think she might be mine, if only I had been a younger man, And not so portly, not so like my namesake—
The Albert Edwards seem to run to fat, Although my mother was no Oneen Victoria, No feather-bed

WEAZEL: But where's the bonnie mare? ALBERT EDWARD: Ted to a post outside . . . O vanished youth!

To think because a few short years have combed My golden curls out, and destroyed my figure, I must lose such a prize! The price she'd fetch At Tattersall's!

WEAZEL: Why can't you speak out plain,

And tell . . . ALBERT EDWARD: And all because of gout and asthma!

Genteel complaints, and in the family—

My father was a martyr . . .

Devil take WEAZEL:

Your father and you, if you . . .

ALBERT EDWARD: Oh, my poor breath

And her sot of a master, lying like a log, Blind-drunk and helpless.

HAREHEELS:

Look here, old broken bellows, If you don't tell us, and sharp . . .

ALBERT EDWARD: You fluster me.

The lot of you. I might be an accident, The way you all keep crowding round and shoving.

Move further off; and let me get my breath.

How can I tell . . . But it's not only my bellows That's broken, but my heart, to think of her

Left with that drunken brute.

BLACKADDER: Come, stow that gammon, Or something else of yours will soon be broken.

ALBERT EDWARD: Lady, you understand? A woman's heart . . .

BLACKADDER A woman's hand will take you by the neck.

And snap it like a kex, if you don't tell us

Where twas you saw the mare Come, jerk it out!

ALBERT EDWARD It's been a weakness with me all my life

I don't regret it, but I never could

Refuse a lady Such a pair of eyes-

Black diamonds !

You leave my eyes alone. BLACKADDER

ALBERT EDWARD My mother had black eyes I've always had

A tender spot

You'll have a tenderer spot, Sum Jim And black eyes like your mother, into the bargain,

If you don't tell us

Who's addressing you? ALBERT EDWARD

I'm talking with this lady Can't we have

A little tête-a-tête, but you barge m

With your coarse notions?

BLACKADDER (seeing Albert Edward by the collar) Gox, I'll tatertate you!

Just spit it out, or I'll ...

Oh, my poor breath! ALBERT EDWARD

Such sudden affection at my time of life

Restrain yourself, my dear. Is more than I

BLACKADDER You windywallops ! I'll twist your . . . Patience, patience1 ALBERT EDWARD.

Ow! If there's one fault the gentle sex has

You're choking me, my love!

RLACKADDER

I'll throttle you

Where is that mare?

ALBERT EDWARD (gasping): Outside The Travellers' Rest.

(Blackadder releases him, and Weazel and Slim Jim begin to move off down the road.)

ALBERT EDWARD: Now I can breathe. But where are you two off to?

Weazel (stopping and turning): To fetch the mare for you.

ALBERT EDWARD:

Now that's real kind-

Christian, I call it. It's not every day
I come across real gentlemen—going off,
Without a word, to do a kindly deed.
But do you think two'll manage? Hadn't someone Better drop in to have a drink, and keep
The landlord busy, while the other two . . .
Though doubtless, you know best, I'll just sit down,
And get my wind to entertain the ladies
While you're away. My poor heart's palpitating.
A hug like that at my age! I'm not used . . .
Though I can't blame the wench: she's not the first
That's cottoned up to Albert Edward Higgs.
So, I'll just take things easy, till you bring
My mare for me.

(The tramp sits down by the fire with his back to the cart, still unconscious of RED ROWAN'S eye watching him.)

Weazel (to Hareheels, who makes as if to accompany them): You needn't come: we'll manage.

HAREHEELS: You fancy I'd trust you two!

BLACKADDER: I'm coming as well.

I couldn't trust that mare with any man.

NETTLE If she's to go, I'll not be left behind— Though it's not the mare I cannot trust with men.

WEATEL Now, have some sense It's just a onehorse-show

And when I go to view a mare, I'm not For travelling with a gairishon You'll give The game away, among you—such a gang And, anyway, we can't all go and leave

ALBERT EDWARD Don't worry about me you needn't

On ceremony with me I'm not the sort Easily takes offence and I'll just snooze

BLACKADDER He's safe enough, the wheezy saveloy! I could settle him, single-handed He'll not bolt

Weazel (catching sight of Ren Rowan's eye peering from under the tilt) He'd better not try it on, if I'm a judge

But such a gang! Though you two wenches might Be cracking with the company in the bar, While we.

Albert Edward The very thing! Who'd have a thought

For mares, while two such charmers

It's my loss
But I must try and bear up while you're away

And keep an eye on things

Weazel. Only an eye
If you lay as much as a finger on the gear,
You'll not be portly when we've done with you

(They steal out in single file, leaving the tramp stretched out by the fire with his eyes closed. When they are well out of hearing, he sits up, and winks: then rises briskly and looks cautiously round. By the time his eyes reach the cart, Red Rowan has dropped the curtain of the tilt, and disappeared from sight.)

ALBERT EDWARD: What ho! The coast is clear, and all serene!

To it, my hearties! Once aboard the lugger . . . A mile and a half, at least, to The Travellers' Rest. I'll just have time for a snack, and a look about me To see if there's aught worth picking up—not much Of a Tommy Tiddler's ground, by the looks of it: But you never know what you'll find in a coper's cart: They've a knack of raking in queer odds and ends, Knocking about the country. I've been surprised Before to-day. I may have struck it lucky.

(He picks up a plate and spoon from the ground, and helps himself to stew from the pot. As he does so, with his back to the cart, Red Rowan unhooks the canvas curtain of the tilt, which drops down silently: then sits, motionless, under the dark arch, like an alabaster idol, her grizzled hair on her shoulders, and her eyes fixed on the tramp's back.)

ALBERT EDWARD: Hare, by the sniff of it: I've always had

A weakness for jugged hare. Damn it, it's hot!
Well, I'll just set it down to cool a bit,
While I look round. Ow! but I've got the shivers;
And there's cold water trickling down my spine:
I must have caught a chill—these frosty nights . . .
Now for the lugger, to see . . .

(Turning his head, he catches sight of Ren Rowan She does not stir or speak, but sits with eyes fixed on him)

Albert Edward What ho, she bumps '
(Recovering himself) Your pardon, lady—I thought I was alone.

I'm the new cook, just tasting the stew to see . Another punch of salt, or half a punch, If you would kindly hand me out the saltbox And a dash of pepper wouldn't come amiss But, blimey, am I talking to a lady, Or Cleopatra's mummy? It's a waxwork, For sure no lady could have held her tongue So long I'm always sorry for wax ladies In shows, or smirking in the barbers' windows-And they, without a tongue to wag But, lordy, To think I should be scared by two glass eyes! I once glanced over my shoulder, and saw an owl Glaring down on me just so-I don't like owls, Their eyes, or voices I've heard too much of them These last few nights at gets into your blood And curdles it, that screeching—and when the eyes Moved Higgs, your nerves aren't what they were, my boy

It's time you lay up in your winter-quarters

These hills and foggy nights Why, you'll be see)ng

Ghosts, and mistaking only for witches next, If you can't look a waxwork in the eyes

(RL Rowan moves her eyes slowly round The fra, a starts)

Jerusalem! (Recovering.) Not bad for a travelling show . . .

Yet, who the devil dropt the curtain down?

I could have sworn, when I looked round just now,

There was no blinking image.

Red Rowan: Who are you calling

A blinking image?

Albert Edward: Bust me, if it isn't

Madam Tussaud herself! Your pardon, madam,

But I mistook you . . .

RED ROWAN (twisting up her hair): So, you'd have a snack:

Then see what you could pick up in the cart?

Queer odds and ends in copers' carts? You've struck Your lucky!

Albert Edward: Jesting, jesting!

Red Rowan: Once aboard . . .

Albert Edward: Only a favourite wheeze—you know it? "Once

Aboard the lugger, and the girl is mine!"

RED ROWAN (climbing down from the cart): She is.

ALBERT EDWARD (stepping back): She is?

RED ROWAN: The girl is yours.

Albert Edward: O lordy!

You never thought I meant. . . . It's just a saying-

Gammon, you know. I've always had a turn

For poetry; and everybody knows

It's all-my-eye-and-Betty-Martin.

RED ROWAN: Nay:

Nothing I ken of Betty: but I ken

When you leave here, I'm going with you.

ALBERT EDWARD

Blimey!

Voil never mean .

RED ROWAL I mean just what I'm saying.

ALBERT EDWARD You wouldn't quit .

Ren Rowal I'm going to be a quitter,

Before I'm quitted

ALBERT EDWARD I see-been having words?

Was it with young black-eyes?

Rep Roway The jezebel!

She, telling fortunes, and buying neckerchiefs.

For men who are old enough to be her granddad!

ALBERT EDWARD Plainer and plainer! Love and Jealouss,

May and December, or The Old Man's Darling

A Drama of High Life, in penny numbers?

Red Rowan Me—jealous of thou jezebel!

ALBERT EDWARD Come, come,

Old lady, don't take on so

RED ROWAN Who are you calling Old lady? You're no two-year old, yourself

Old lady, indeed

Atherr Edward Ashp' But what are words?

Just wind, and soon blow over. You and blackeyes

Will make it up, and you'll be bosom-friends

Before you know

RED ROWAN Ay, it will need to be

Before I know Where are you bound for, Stumpy?

At BERT EDWARD My winter-quarters I can't stand

the North

In winter it's too chilly, and too creepy.

We winter in the South: I'm the last swallow-The last rose of summer left blooming alone . . . And where . . . RED ROWAN: ALBERT EDWARD: My lovely companions all faded . . . Where may be . . . RED ROWAN: ALBERT EDWARD: My winter-quarters? Why, in London, of course-Whitechapel way: my Park Lane house is let For the season to Ikey . . . London? RED ROWAN: ALBERT EDWARD: Where ever else Could any gentleman winter? That will do: RED ROWAN: I've always had a fancy to live in London. We may as well be stepping. You're not serious? ALBERT EDWARD: You're gammoning-just kidding me? You can't Pull Albert Edward's leg, or Higgs's either. You never mean . . RED ROWAN: Where you go, I go too. ALBERT EDWARD: Well, I'll be hanged! Likely; but I'll not promise RED ROWAN: To follow you further than the gallows' foot: But short of that, you'll not escape . . . ALBERT EDWARD: You fancy I'd saddle myself with a hag? RED ROWAN (eyeing him with a smile): A what? ALBERT EDWARD: Blue murder! Don't look at me like that—those eyes . . . RED ROWAN: A what?

ALBERT EDWARD: Pardon, a slip!

For hanging, there'd be nothing left to hang

ALBERT EDWARD Stop it, old lady!

Rep Roway Don't old lady me

But I'll not let you hide yourself in gaol

Till Weazel's wrung your neck, and Slim Jun's sabbed

Your jaw, and Hareheels clog-danced on your chest,

Scrunching your ribs like faggots-crackle, crackle.

Ay, and Blackadder

ALBERT EDWARD Mercy! Draw it mild!

REG ROWAN Mild, did you say? That's only mother's milk

To what I'll make you swallow I could bluster Your thrapple with a dose . .

Almer EDWARD I've had enough;

I've never been a soaker-always known

The time to stop and I meant no offence

RED HOWAN Nor I, but I am going to travel with you

I won't bide here, and let thon jezebel
Badger and bullyrag me all day long
And Weazel, he would leave me in the ditch
To die, as like as not—and he, new-fangled
With every fresh red flannel-petticoat
Catches his eye! And winter coming on

The frosts go through my bones now like cold needles,

Turning the marrow to ice and I've a notion

To winter betwirt four walls. I'm getting on—

Too old for the road, it seems. I never fancied

The fire'd burn out to ashes. Let him mind He doesn't scorch his fingers with his new flame—The black-eyed jezebel! I'm sick to death Of the whole gangrel crew.

(The tramp has stolen behind her, and tries to sidle off, unnoticed.)

You'd sneak away

Without me, would you? But my eye is on you, Although I've got my back to you.

ALBERT EDWARD (stopping): No, no—I only meant . . . I wouldn't dream of going Without you.

RED ROWAN: Nay, you'll never dream again
Without my knowing all that's in your mind,
My bonnie birkie. When you sleep, my eye
Will burrow, a red maggot, in your brain,
Eating your thoughts up—ay, and starving on them.
But come, we'd best be making ourselves scarce,
Before they're back, unless you'd rather wait?

Albert Edward: Well, if it's a choice between . . .

Red Roway: No choice for you:

Though you'd scarce be worth the taking, when they'd finished.

Poor company, a rackle of broken bones! Weazel will miss me.

Albert Edward: Miss you! ay, who wouldn't?
Red Rowan: You're coming, Stumpy? Well, we'd best step out.

ALBERT EDWARD: Ay, if it must be "we": but isn't there

A dowry with the lady—a spoon or so?

A little property won't come amiss. (Looking round)
Now in that cart?

RED ROWAN Haven't you had enough
Out of the cart? You said, you'd been surprised
Before to day

ALBERT EDWARD Never! And, what is more, I'll never be surprised again in this life

RED ROWAN You can't be sure, until I've done with you

We're just beginning life together I've still A trick or two up my sleeve might startle you But we'll not take a spoon with us if we did, They d follow us, for certain

ALBERT EDWARD Right you are

RED ROWAN You're learning sense and right I'll be for you

Until you're snug between the coffin-boards

And even then, you'll not escape my eye-

A red-hot gimlet, worming through the deal
AIBERT EDWARD Oh, don't start that again it isn't nice—

And me with chronic asthma, and a heart.

Rep Rowan Your asthma and my rheumatics should keep pace,

And jog along together cannily

Albert Edward Albert, you're hooked. Edward, you're hooked and Higgs,

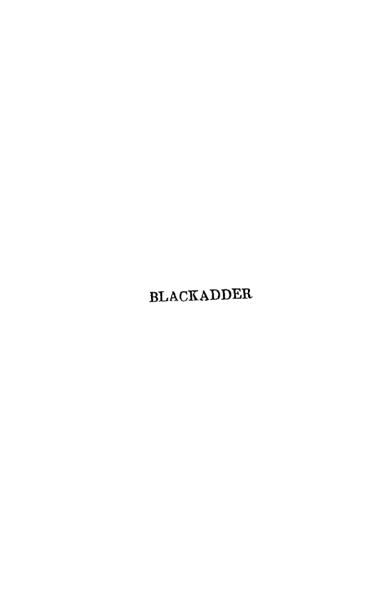

You're hooked and landed Vell, jump up, old girl,

Behind me on the mare

RID ROWAL The mare?

Albert Edward (starting off): Ay, Shanks's. There never was a lovelier mare—such action, Such elegance!

RED ROWAN (following): I little dreamt I'd come To hoof it with a gaberlunzie-man!

PERSONS

HAREHEELS
SLIM JIM
BLACKADDER
NETTLE.
JACK BENSON, a disabled soldier

BLACKADDER

Scene: A horse-copers' camp by a Border-stream, on a fine Spring morning. The camp fire is dying out: and the muggers' cart, with its canvas tilt, is packed for travelling. Hareheels and Slim Jim are polishing harness: and Blackadder is washing breakfast-dishes in the stream. Nettle, with a shawl over her head and carrying a large market-basket over her arm, comes from behind the cart; and, shuffling towards Blackadder, stands looking down on her sullenly.

Blackadder (looking up): Well?

NETTLE: Don't you dare say "well" to me like that.

BLACKADDER: Like what?

NETTLE: Like what—I'll let you see like what.

I'll teach you I'm not clarts beneath your clogs.

BLACKADDER: What's wrong?

Neltle: What's wrong? You well may ask what's wrong:

You'll soon find out; and I can tell you this much To keep you going—you may as tite know now: This is the last time I'll run errands for you.

BLACKADDER: For me?

NETTLE Ay, it's been you, from morn till night, Waited on hand and foot, since you drove away Red Rowan from her own man, and twisted him Round your little finger, the poor doing dobby! But, now that Weazel's dead and underground, You'll find you cannot queen it over us You said her reign was over—do you mind? Well, yours has been a shorter one, my lady BLACKADDER You've got the basket? When you bring it back,

I'll talk to you If you stand blathering there, You'll be forgetting half of what I told you To fetch from the village

NETTIF And next time I'll forget
To go at all it's you'll be carrying

The basket

BLACKADDER You're for leaving us?

NETTLE I leave !

Blackapper The way you're talking, it seems you're got a mind

To take Red Rowan's road

NETTLE You little ken!

BLACKADDER I only ken if you stop daundering there, You'll follow her, and double-quick

Neitle Your man

Happen will have a word to say to you,

If you try on tricks with me

Blackadder My man?

NEITLE Your master

BLACKADDER Master-who's he?

NETTLE Hareheels

BLACKADDER, My master?

NETTLE:

Ay,

Now Weazel's buried, Hareheels has a mind

To take you back: and he's the master now.

BLACKADDER: You've settled it?

Netre: Not I: I'm not the sort

To settle things for men: I'd never snatch

The reins from menfolk's hands: but one thing's certain-

We're none of us, from this on, going to do

The bidding of a petticoat.

BLACKADDER:

I see.

NETTLE: Hareheels and Jim . . .

BLACKADDER: The three of you have put

Your noddles together, trying to make one head?

(Calling) Hareheels!

(Hareheels goes on polishing without taking any notice.)

NETTLE (to HAREHEELS): Now don't you hear her majesty?

Jump to it, lad!

HAREHEELS: I'll come when I've a mind to.

BLACKADDER: Hareheels, it's time you took the mare to get

That hind shoe seen to.

HAREHEELS (rising and slouching forward): Who are you ordering?

BLACKADDER: You'll soon find out.

HAREHEELS: Not I, my lass: it's you

Will do the finding out. I'm master now,

As Nettle says; and I'll not let my doxy

Be bossing me. By gox, I've stood enough

From you and Weazel—that old devil, sneaking
My woman from me! He hooked it just in time
To save his thrapple, the variant I'd have slit
The weasands of the pair of you, I would,
If I'd to swing for it. You give a squint
At any other man, and I'll

Bi ackadder Ay, ny, Yon're the braw cock-a-ride a-roosie, now

That Weazel's dead

HARLHELLS Well, anyway, no hen Shall rule the roost as Nettle says .

BLACKADDER As Nettle?

Seemingly, you've been listening to hen's cackle? And so it's Nettle that's to rule the roost? You'd better mate with her, my cockmadendy Dare say Slim Jim won't mind

Nerrie You . but Shee

Jim

Will talk to you himself—I ken my place
I'm no loose-petticoat—but such as you
Don't understand a decent woman's feelings
BLACKADDER—Slim Jim will talk?—So, he's to have a chance

At last? Yet, he seems shy happen, he's lost. The use of his tongue he's had to keep it quiet. So long, poor dumny!

NETTLE You hear her?

SLIM JIM A3, I hear

But I'll just leave you two to settle with her

NETTLE You call yourself a man! Just wait till I

BLACKADDER: It seems that Slim Jim kens his place: he's wise.

SLIM JIM: Nay, but I'm with them: and no petticat . . .

BLACKADDER: Well, you've both got your lesson off pat, good boys!

No petticoat? You've given up your trousers

To Nettle, you and Hareheels? Well, she's welcome

To the brace of you: it leaves me free.

Nertle: You slut—

You radgy slut!

HAREHEELS: Nay, leave the wench to me.

I'll break her yet: I'll take my way with her.

· She'll learn that she's a woman—I'm a man.

Free! She'll soon find out what her freedom's worth, If she tries on her tricks!

BLACKADDER (regarding him steadily): You take the mare.

NETTLE: You'll do her bidding, Hareheels?

HAREHEELS (turning): Well, that shoe

Wants seeing to: I may as tite . . .

BLACKADDER: And you

Be off, before . . .

NETTLE (moving): I'd scorn to stay and talk With such . . . but it's the last time, mind you.

BLACKADDER: Happen

But where is Slim Jim off to?

NETTLE: What's that to you?

And mayn't I take my man to carry my basket Without your leave? Likely, I'd trust you two Alone together.

BLACKADDER Well, put a jerk in it, The lot of you, if we're to start to-day.

(HAREHEELS goes down the road to the right, leading the more and Nevile and Sim

Jim follow Blackadder stands, looking after them and litting her lips)

BLACKADDER So, that's their little game

(Blackadder bends down to the stream to finish her dish-washing. Presently Jack Benson hobbles down the road from the left. He is a tall slender lad on crutches with only one leg, and looks half-starved and ill. He stops as Blackadder looks up.)

Jack Good-morning, mistress.

BLACKAUDER Good-morning

Jack Well, it's something, anyway,

To have a lady wishing me good-morning-

If wishes would cram the beliy and warm the bones

BLACKADDIE You're hungry? Well, there's still a sup of tea

Left in the can I'll heat it up for you
You just sit down, while I make up the fire
And there's some bread and cheese. You're shivering?
It's not that cold

Jack Happen not, by the fire,
But it might have been an iceberg, not a haystack,
I sat and shivered under all night long
You're looking for my leg? You'll have to look
A little further, mistress, if you'd find it
It's somewhere on the veldt—that's Africa
Blackadder You've been in Africa?

JACK:

Where are your eyes,

You cannot see I've swapped my leg for a touch Of fever?

BLACKADDER: Fever?

JACK (sitting down): Ay, it's not only the cold

That makes me dother: it's malaria-

The swagger name they give it, to make you proud You've not got common ague. You've to travel To get malaria, while poor stay-at-homes . . .

BLACKADDER: Come, sup this, lad: 'twill warm your hones a bit.

You're ailing, surely?

Jack: So you have an eye?

A pair of them: I don't know when I saw

A bonnier pair!

BLACKADDER: You've been to Africa?

What were you after?

Jack: Pleasure, mistress, pleasure—

A little shooting-party with some friends.

BLACKADDER: Shooting?

Jack: Ay, potting Boers, or being potted:

That's how I lost my leg.

BLACKADDER: So, you're a soldier?

Jack: A soldier—nay, a has-been—just a relic Of a death-or-glory-boy. I dodged the death,

And got the glory: that's what makes me fat.

BLACKADDER: You're just a scarecrow.

JACK: No such blooming luck!

A boggart has no belly—and his clothes, All found for him; and he doesn't need to hobble On his lone shank about the countryside. BLACKADDIR You've been to Africa-you've seen the world?

JACK I've seen the world—ay, more than enough of it

And as for Africa

BLACKADDER You've crossed the sea?

JACK Ay, for my sins, I have

BLACKADDER And fought with men?

JACK With men? With hills a hundred miles away

And they returned the compliment, they did—

Sent me a sappy one, with kind regards,
No answer needed knocked me out, whizz-bang 1

Splintered the twin of this fine leg—a pair,
A lovely pair, they were—a trifle bowed

With riding, but such calves, first-prize bull calves.

BLACKADDEL Ay, your poor leg

Jack Well, I've survived the loss

And, as things are, happen it's just as well
I haven't two to fatten Crutches, mistress,
Don't need much blowing out

BLACK ADDER You're naught but bones

JACK And aching bones, at that I've hobbled it

This twelve-month, dot and-carry-one, till I'm

BLACKADDER You're starved but you'll not need to starve again

Nor hobble another inch

Jack Jehoshaphat !

You mean .. You haven't a kinfe about you, mistress, To sht my thrapple? It wouldn't be worth while To do me in I didn't strike the diamonds—

You have a little to the trike the diamonds

Nay, nor a gold mine out in Africa

So, that's why you kept harping on . . . I see,
Mistook me for de Beers or Cecil Rhodes!
But I haven't a cent about me, not a cent:
So it would be a pity to dirty your knife,
And swing for nothing—such a pretty neck,
I couldn't bear to think it should be broken:
Though, as for myself, I'd not mind overmuch.
I'm tired of travelling; and I want to settle;
And I'd as lief have you as anyone
Settle me. So, whip out your little pen knife,
And stick me quick. (Stretching out his throat) This pig won't squeal. "One last

Fond look into those eyes of . . ."

BLACKADDER: You've the nerve!

Jack: "One last fond look"... But, sharp about it, mistress:

I cannot keep my neck stretched out much longer. I've got a fit of shivers coming on.

BLACKADDER: And you, on that wet grass! Just take my arm:

I'll help you into the cart; and you can sleep:

You'll feel the better . . .

JACK: Sleep? But what about

The waking, mistress?

BLACKADDER: You can sleep your fill.

JACK: My fill—I see: and dead men tell no tales?

BLACKADDER: You're not dead yet: and, from this on, that cart

Is yours; and you can lie your length in it All day, and welcome: no one shall disturb you, While I... Jack Jerusalem! I'm dead already,

And never knew it 'Well, I'd kind of hoped
I'd have two legs in heaven, but likely enough
The other's not turned up yet it would have I'urther to travel, for Africa's a deal
Nearer the other place And yet it's had Well-nigh a three-years' start I trust it's not
T'aken the wrong turn, and already frizzling
I always thought that angels had blue eyes
BLACKADDER Come, up with you, before you shake yourself To pieces

JACK Ay, I've got the shivery shakers
This time, and no mistake I'm in for it,
It seems, and I don't mind if I lie down
You're certain no one will object?

BLACKADDER

Object 1

I'd like to see

Jack By gov, and so should I!
"Twould take a man to stand up to those eyes—
And with two legs

BLACKADDER Up with you, or you'll learn

JACK Here's for the golden chariot!

(Blackadder helps Jack into the cart, and settles him comfortably with a horse-ring over him, and then closes the canvas curtain of the tilt)

JACK (his voice coming from under the vill)

One thing, mistress,

I'd like to know before I close my peepers;
And that's—if we're all carriage folk in heaven?

(Blackadder does not answer; but stands gazing with an abstracted air into the fire. Some time has passed, when SLIM JIM and NETTLE return with the basket, followed by Hareheels with the mare, which he puts into the shafts of the cart.)

NETTLE: That's the last errand.

BLACKADDER: Not for you to say.

NETTLE: Nor you.

Blackadder: Nor me.

HAREHEELS: You've learnt your lesson, have you?

You've found your master?

BLACKADDER: Ay, I've found my master.

NETTLE (laughing): You've tamed her, Hareheels. Well, I've always held

Men should be masters. Still, I should have judged She'd have made a bit of a fight for it.

BLACKADDER: Less noise:

You'll waken him.

NETTLE: Waken? Who the devil . . .

BLACKADDER: Your master.

NETTLE: Hareheels? But he's not sleeping.

BLACKADDER: I said naught

Of Hareheels.

NETTLE: Well, who else . . .

BLACKADDER: He's in the cart;

And wants to sleep.

NETTLE: He's in the cart. . . . Not Weazel—

Don't say it's Weazel! But I saw him straked

And chested, and . . .

BLACKADDER: Your master's in the cart.

NETTLE - Don't tell me Weazel's walking 1 Can't bide

To think of ghosts

HABERELLS Ghosts-who's afraid of ghosts?

NETTLE She says that Weazel's ghost's . .

HARFHEELS Come back to have

His throat slit, likely? Well

BLACKADDER I said your master

Was in the cart.

HAREHFELS Her master?

Blackaunee. Ay, and yours

And ghost or not

(Blackadder breaks off, as she seer the face of the soldier peeping out beneath the cauras. SLIM JIM has now come up, and he and Habeheels and Nettle, following the direction of Blackadder's eyes, stare at the cart in amazement)

NETTLE Preserve us!

HAREHERIS What the devil!

Sun Jim Thon's no ghost.

Jack No, chum, you're right it seems I'm not a ghost,

Although I fancied. But, if this is heaven, It's hanky-panky about angels' wings.

Or you're newcomers, like myself, and haven't

Begun to sprout .

HAREHEELS. You just hop out of that!

NETTLY So that's the master, your new fancy-man?

HAREHEELS By gox, I'll settle him!

BLACKADDER Dare lay a finger . . .

Jack: Now no unpleasantness—I wouldn't have
- Jnpleasantness on my account. The lady
Just kindly offered me a lift.

HAREHEELS: I'll lift you!

If you don't . . .

JACK: Well, you'll have to lift me, mate:

It's more than I can manage with one leg.

BLACKADDER (to HAREHEELS): You dare!

JACK: Nay, mistress, I've no mind to stop Where I'm not wanted.

HAREHEELS (helping him out of the cart): Well, you've got some sense.

NETTLE: That, the new master, your new fancy-man—Thon shivering, one-legged bag-of-bones!

BLACKADDER: You dare!

NETTLE: Thon's the braw callant—— Oh, I mind, I mind,

Your blathering, the night Red Rowan left, About a braw young callant, galloping To swing you to his saddle. Well, you're welcome To him: though, likely, Hareheels has a word To say to him.

HAREHEELS: I cannot slit the gullet Of thon lame scarecrow.

NETTLE: And you'd let Blackadder . . .

HAREHEELS: I'm through with her, if thon's the sort she fancies—

Old daffling dobbies, and hirpling tattie-jacks.

(He lifts the basket and the dishes into the cart.)

NETTLE: You're done with her? And a good riddance too.

I wish her callant joy . .

SLIM JIM. You hold your gob

Blackadder, are you coming?

BLACKADDER I'm not coming

Sum Jin You'd bide with .. Well, it's no affair of (HAREHEELS moves off with the eart and horse; and SLIM JIM and NETTLE follow down the road)

Jack God save our gracious! It seems we're left.

Blackapper We're left.

Jack Babes in the wood, like—though I see no

Jack Babes in the wood, like—though I see no robins

And I must own I like the wicked uncles Better than auntie.

BLACKADDER Nettle, you mean?

Jack She would be

Yet, bless her heart, she didn't put it badly—
A shivering, one-legged bag-of-bones, that's me,

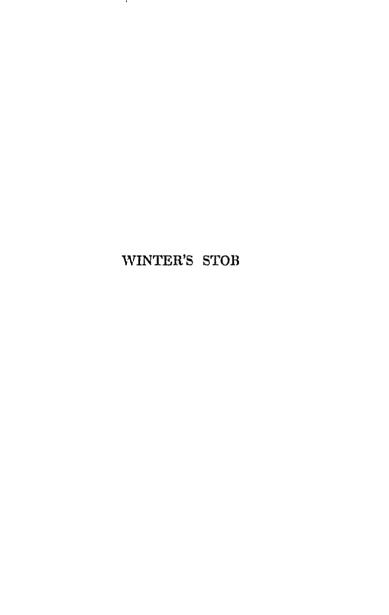

Jack Benson to a T-a speaking likeness,

And no charge made! Well, I've long had a mind

To marry and settle down I'm tired of travelling;
Though I little guessed . We never know our luck!

And, happen, you're a fancy to settle?

BLACKADDER Settle

PERSONS

Nebby Peter, an old drover
CURLY DODD
SPANKER ORD
Spanker Ord

WINTER'S STOB

Scene: Winter's Stob on a Spring morning. A flock of sheep comes up the road from the direction of Morpeth; Curix Dodd walking in front of them, and Nebby Peter following.

NEBBY (calling): Hi, lad!

Curly (stopping and turning his head): What's wrong?

NEBRY: I'm going to rest my shanks.

Curty: So early?

NEBBY: Ay, it's well enough for you,

With your young bones: but when they've travelled as far

As mine . . .

Curly: I've come as far.

Nebby: This morning, ay:

But this is not the first I've walked the world.

CURLY: Nor I.

Nebby: Oh, you're Methuselah, you are—

The Wandering Jew! How many centuries,

May I make bold to ask, have you been traiking,

Since you first set out from Jerusalem?

Curly: Who are you getting at? And I'm no Jew-

More like a Jew yourself, with thon hooked neb.

NEBBY: Better a half-moon than a button-mushroom,

If we're for swapping compliments on noses. And Jews-well, they're not mongrels, anyhow They're all pure-bred and devil only kens What boggart got you on a worn-out besom-Born upon Guy Fawkes' Day and all, I'd fancy. But whether or no. I'm going to squat right here

(NEBBY sits down under Winter's Stob The. sheep spread out, and start grazing on either side of the road)

CURIY (looking up at the Stob) Thon's a queer signpost, with no word upon it,

And pointing down no road

NEBBY It's pointing straight

The road you're travelling hotfoot, son

Corry What road?

Number The road to hell

CURLY

To hell, yourself ! NEBRY If you

Don't sprag that tongue, you'll find it's taken you The journey at a jump But sure enough,

A gey queer signpost, and it's called a stob

CURLY A stob-what a that?

NEBBY A gibbet, son

CHRLY A gibbet?

NEREN Where ever were you reared and educated, That you don't ken a gibbet when you see one ! Next, you'll be kidding me you never heard Of William Winter

CURLY Well, I never did

NEBRY The ignorance of young folk, nowadays! He was a murderer, and dangled there

In chains, until the corbies picked his bones Clean as a whistle for the wind to blow through.

Curry: Who did he murder?

Nebby: Old Peggy of Haws Pele,

Down in the bottom yonder.

Curly: They hanged him here?

NEBBY: Hanged! Carties, you don't ken the Betwixt a gibbet and a gallows! Well, I'm mistaken in you: it's the other place

You're ticketed for: old Nick's got little use

For ignoranuses. They strung him up

With his two doxies at Newcastle gaol:

Then, judging he'd a liking for the spot

Where the three of them had done the gallant deed

Of strangling one old woman for her stocking . . .

CURLY: Her stocking?

NEBBY: Ay, the one beneath the mattress

She kept her golden leg in—they carted out

His carcase here; and hoisted it in chains

Where his dead eyes could look down on Haws Pele,

Till his bones dropped from their hinges; and only his skull

Glowered on it with eyeless sockets; and then they gathered

His bones into a sack; and they hung rattling Until the rain had rotted that to shreds.

Curly: A bloody story.

Nebey: It should be a warning

To the likes of you not to wear heelplates, son.

CURLY: Heelplates?

Ni BBI Ay, 'twas his heelplates did for him. The day before, he'd squatted by the road With his two doxics, as you're doing now, With hoofs stuck out for all the world to see And a passing herd-lad, with an eye in his head, Noted the pretty pattern of his heelplates And when they found the snow about Haws Pile Printed with the same pattern, William Winter Was done for—corpie-cold as his name already, Though little guesing it himself, where he Was swilling old Peg's savings with his wenches.

Cualry To think his heelplates.

NFBBY Likely enough they were
The very pattern of your own Since then
It's only innocents and wattikins
Have sported heciplates You've left a lovely print
Of yours in every patch of clarts we've crossed
Since we quitted Morpeth

CUBLY Strike me blue! By gox!

(He takes out his jack-knife, and begins hacking off his heelplates)

Nebus Too late to hack them off-though, likely enough,

The trotters have saved you—it's well you went before: Twould take a sharp-eyed 'tec to pick out footprints When five-score ewes bave paddled over them. But let it be a lesson to you, son You thought yourself so swanky with braw heelplates. And Winter turned his up for all to see. And he was taken by the heels—It's swagger That's many a man's undoing, and some day...

Curly: But I'm no murderer.

Nebby: Nor any lad,

Till he's done murder. Thon's a hefty gully

You carry in your pocket—just the blade

To slit a weasand or tickle a man's ribs.

Curly: What is't you're getting at?

Nebby: Just this, my son:

We mayn't all carry murder in our pockets,

But all of us have got it in our hearts:

And some folk shouldn't trust themselves with knives.

I'd an eye on you, my lad, when Spanker Ord

Linked arms and walked off with your wench last night.

Curly: I'll settle with Spanker yet!

Nebey: Just so—just so!

You'd have done the trick last night, if he'd not been

Just twice your size: and, one day, you'll chance on him

In a dark lane, or sleeping in a ditch:

And then it won't be hacking off your heelplates Will save you from Newcastle—and all for what?

A wench who'll link up with another lad

Because he's got it over you in inches,

Or wears a gaudier neckerchief: it's such

Bring most men to the gallows: they're the heelplates

Lads sport so swankily to their undoing.

Even if William Winter'd gone scot-free

That time, he couldn't have escaped the hangman.

What other end could any man expect

Who travels with two doxies? Ay, my son,

You judge you ken all there's to know of women,

As I did at your age: but mark my words,

No man is safe till he knows all, and more:

And I'm still learning, at three-score-and-ten
If you don't keep that jack-knife clasped, and clean
For cutting bread and cheese—that's what it's for—
Not cutting out folk's livers

CURLY And who said

I wanted to cut out anyone's?

NFBB1 You said it—

Not with your tongue but you've a pair of eyes

Are tell-tale-tits, and they'd be evidence

Enough to damn you to the blindest bats

That ever crammed a jury-box You've got

A speaking countenance, as they call it, son.

Av. and that flush!—best keep that fire damp

Ay, and that flush 1 - best keep that fire damped down,

My fighting cock, if you'd not kindle hell—
Or anyway, until you meet the woman
Who'll teach you, son, all womenfolk aren't strumpets.
And she'll not rouse the murder in your heart
I learnt that early, just about your age,
And that's why I have reached three-score and-ten
You follow the draggle-tails of that young fizgig,
You li hang for her, but leave her to six-foot-three,
And 'twill be Spanker kicks his heels in air
For doing in her latest fancy-man,

Who'll, happen, wear brass ear-rings, or sport a waist-coat

With pearlie buttons—I've known scarlet braces
Tempt that sort to go tramping with a tinker
Son, I was sitting on this very spot,
A year back, when I heard a hubblyshew
Far overhead, and squinting up, I saw

Two sparrowhawks at grips, with feathers flying, And claws locked in each other's breasts. Thinks I. So that's the game; and looked out for the hen: And sure enough, I spotted her on you crag, Looking on, calm as calm: when another cock, Scenting the battle, likely, swaggered up: And off she sailed with him, as the fighters dropped, One dead, the other with a broken wing. If you and Spanker ever come to grips, I've a shrewd notion which will fare the worse: And sure as fate, the better man will find The best has bagged his bird while he's been scrapping. Yet, womenfolk aren't all hawks: and I'd the luck To learn that early. But I'm wasting wind. What a lad's to learn of women, he can learn Only from women: and you've had a lesson From one sort . . . (as Curly springs suddenly to his feet). What the devil are you up to? Curly (looking down the road): Spanker, by gox! NEBBY: Spanker it is, no less.

Just hand me out that gully, Curly, lad.

Curry: I'm damned . . .

Nebey: That's so, if you're forgetting Winter. (Curly takes the knife from his pocket and tosses it to Nebey, without a word.)

NEBBY (pocketing the knift). That's that: and now you squat. It's not polite,

And, what's more to the purpose, none too safe, To stand there gaping, when a gentleman Like Spanker's walking with his doxy.

Curly (sitting down): Nay,

There's no one with him

Neber Well, my eyes are not The eyes they were. And so he walks alone? Ay, now I see and judging from his looks, You might have kept your knife

Curly We'd best be moving.

Nebry Nay, till we know, you're safer on your hunkers

And what's your hurry, just when there's a chance
Of pleasant company? You're well enough
For common days, but then, to-day's my birthday—
Just seventy-year, to-day, since first I opened
This mug, to give my mammy some advice;
And I'm still wasting good advice on you
And I've been used to parties on my birthday.
I'm fond of company I ken they say
"Three's none" but that depends, and for my part

I've always found three makes things livelier,
Though, happen, it's a stretch to speak of Spanker
As company, outside a coffin-shop—
Lord, what an undertaker there was lost,
When hangdog took to droving! Not the crony
I'd choose, maybe—but, on the road, you've got
Just to put up with aught that comes along
Ay, and not only on the road—the world's
A lodging-house that takes all sorts of lodgers,
And even in the dosshouse in the basement
We'll not be able to pick our company

(SPANER ORD draws near-a lanky, down-looking man He is walking with his head down.

and doesn't see NEBBY and CURLY as he strides by.)

Nebby: Hi, Spanker! What's your hurry? Who is dying

, Just for one glimpse of thon bright smile of yours?

SPANKER (stopping and turning round): You, is it?

Nebby: Ay. You took it for the voice

Of Winter's ghost?

SPANKER (seeing Curly): And you!

Nebby: Ay, Curly's with me

This journey. He it was who kenned you first.

I couldn't make out what it was that sparkled

Along the road just like a looking-glass,

If looking-glasses could go gallivanting,

When Curly says: "It's Spanker!" and I said:

"Spanker, it is; and bless his sunny smile."

SPANKER: You hold your gob.

Neber: It's yours that wants the holding, By the looks of it; but, if you've got the toothache, You've come to the right shop: a splinter of wood From Winter's Stob is warranted to cure...

SPANKER: Toothache be damned!

Nebby: I'm with you there, my friend.

The things I've suffered from my teeth—the fuss They made, coming and going—couldn't stay To see me through, they couldn't. But Spanker, boy,

Where is your lady-friend?

Spanker: My lady-friend?

NEBBY: Thon wench . . .

Spanker: Damn all . . .

Nebby: Nay, now you go too far.

Damn anything in reason, and I'm with you
But all . Why, mate, where ever should we be Without the ladies? And you didn't seem
Last night to be You've not deserted her,
Thon blue-eyed lass—and she without a mammy?
Shame on you, Spanker I'd thought better of you!
How you've the heart to leave thon innocent
To cry her eyes out for

SPANKER Deserted her!

She, crying for me 1

Nebey Who wouldn't?

SPANKER Gox, she'll cry

Before I've done with her! (Turns to go)

Nebby Where are you off to?

SPANKER After her

NFBBY What, she's left you?

SPANKER Av. she's left me

NEBBY Now, how can I believe that?

SPANKER It's God's truth—

Left me this morning for a bloody mugger

Nebey A mugger? Nay-now, if you'd said a marquis,

I might have

SPANKER Sloped off with him in his cart, While I was sleeping but I'm on their track.

NEBBY So ho, my sleuth-hound, nosing on the scent!
Brass ear-rings and a pair of scarlet braces,
I'll warrant. Hard it is a handsome man
Like you can't hold them without titivating
But that's the way with women—got to wash
To humour them, even if you are a duke

So they eloped: and you are following them:
That's why you're travelling without sheep? A man

Looks such a fool without a flock before him.

You're tracking them? You don't, by any chance,

Wear heelplates, Spanker?

SPANKER: Heelplates? What the devil . . .

You're going dotty-and I'll go dotty, too . . .

NEBBY: Not far for you to travel.

SPANKER: If I stand here,

Chin-wagging: and I'll lose the track of them.

(Spanker sets off, half-running.)

Nerby: And never even wished me "happy returns"— Though, likely, it's I should have been wishing him . . .

Toothache! It's not a splinter from a gibbet Will cure his ache, but the gallows' rope itself.

Yet I can't argue with every loony that's set

On running his head in a noose: and anyway, With jobs that scarce, it isn't fair to the hangman:

He's got his brats to keep in bread and butter.

We'd best be moving, too.

Curly (rising): Give me my gully.

NEBBY (getting up with difficulty):

Ow! growing-pains! Give you . . . I'm not aware I've anything of yours about me, son.

Curax: You thief, you!

NEBBY: Oh, you mean the knife you swapt

For my advice? You'll never get that back

Until you've given me advice as useful,

And saved my neck. I'm no philanthropist:

When I want naught, I give as much, no more.

My eye's been on thon jack-knife, since I lost

My own last night, and it should serve to cut
My bread and cheese till the day I lose my relish
For them and beer—and so know I'm in hell
Yet, you may have it back, on one condition
If you will follow Spanker, and plant it deep Betwirt his shoulder blades. You won't? Well, well,

It doesn't seem you set much value on it,
If you'll not do a little thing like that
To get it back We'd best be stepping out.
And, as you're done with them, I may as tite.
Pocket thon heelplates they might fetch a penny.
One thing I can't abide—that's wilful waste.

KESTREL EDGE

PERSONS

REUBEN ANGERTON, a young sheep-master.
Gideon Angerton, his younger brother
Naomi Angerton, their mother

KESTREL EDGE

Scene: The parlour of Kestrel Edge, the farmstead of a big sheep-farm on the Border. It is about half-past seven on a November evening. Naomi Angerton, a widow of forty-five, sits with her knitting in her hand, now gazing abstractedly into the fire, now glancing restlessly at the clock. Supper is laid for two. Presently, a sound of wheels is heard without. Naomi listens, but doesn't rise: and before long Reuben Angerton, a strapping young, well-to-do sheep-master of twenty-five, enters, unbuttoning his greatcoat which he throws carelessly on a chair. He strides to the hearth; and stands with his back to the fire, his hands behind him, warming them.

Reuben: A raw night, mother.

Naom: You're back?

REUBEN: And glad to be so.

The wind's a perisher. I might have come
Straight from New Zealand—I'm such frozen mutton—
Could scarcely hold the reins. It's going to snow.

NAOMI: And what's the news?

Reuben: The news?—that Kestrel Edge Has lost the best tup ever bred there.

NAOMI: Sheep!

I ask for news; and hear you've lost a sheep.

But, happen, you've found something will make up?

PERSONS

REUBEN ANGERTON, a young sheep-master Gideon Angerton, his younger brother Naum Angerton, their mother

KESTREL EDGE

Scene: The parlour of Kestrel Edge, the farmstead of a big sheep-farm on the Border. It is about half-past seven on a November evening. NAOMI Angerton, a widow of forty-five, sits with her knitting in her hand, now gazing abstractedly into the fire, now glancing restlessly at the clock. Supper is laid for two. Presently, a sound of wheels is heard without. NAOMI listens, but doesn't rise: and before long Reuben Angerton, a strapping young, wellto-do sheep-master of twenty-five, enters, unbuttoning his greatcoat which he throws carelessly on a chair. He strides to the hearth; and stands with his back to the fire, his hands behind him, warming them.

REUBEN: A raw night, mother.

NAOMI:

You're back? And glad to be so. REUBEN:

The wind's a perisher. I might have come Straight from New Zealand—I'm such frozen mutton— Could scarcely hold the reins. It's going to snow.

NAOMI: And what's the news?

The news?—that Kestrel Edge REUBEN:

Has lost the best tup ever bred there.

NAOMI: Sheep!

I ask for news; and hear you've lost a sheep. But, happen, you've found something will make up? When you set out to sell a ram, you don't

Expect to bring him back

REUBEN Make up for him?

Nothing could make up for a tup like thon

NAOMI Not even gold?

REUBEN Nay, not his weight in gold.

NAOMI And that would be?

RELEFY Somewhere around ten stone.

NAOMI And how far short's the price?

Reusen I hardly know

What it would turn the scale at, paid in sovereigns .

But it's gey light in notes, not half an ounce

NAOMI How many notes?

Reuben Tive notes

Naom Five hundreds?

Rechen Ay
Naom That's naught to grumble at—a tidy sum

REUBEN I could have had it twice over, for two such tups

There were two agents, bidding against each other For Kestrel King

Naom Pity you hadn't two

REUSEA Two, mother? There has never been a tup

The like of him

NAOMI Havers 1 You know my father

Got twice the sum for Border Chief

Reuby That's so

Thon were the golden days for breeding sheep But Kestrel.

NAOMI Oh, I'm sick to death of sheep!
It's always tups and ewes, and ewes and tups,

Cheviots and Southdowns, Hedderwicks and Leicesters, Till I'm sheep-witted with the bleat of men.

Best take your supper.

REUBEN (seating himself at the table): Just two places?

NAOMI: Ay.

I took tea late; and couldn't touch a bite.

REUBEN: Where's Gideon?

NAOVIT . How should I know? Like enough

Looking for lost sheep: he's sheep-watty too,

Like all the Angertons.

REUBEN: Gideon? He hardly kens

A Border-Leicester from a Hedderwick.

NAOMI: But he's an eye for black sheep.

True enough-REHREN .

Reclaiming them, and all—takes after father.

Naom: He's half your father: you're the other half

REUBEN: Ay, father was sheep-master of two flocks.

NAOM: Yet, souls or mutton, it was always sheep.

But, all the same, I'm glad you've got that price Just now.

REUBEN: Just now? We're nothing short of cash.

NAOMI: I'm glad you've got your father's gift with sheep:

And Kestrel Edge will prosper. Gideon's flock Of blood-washed sinners wouldn't fetch one-half-One-hundredth.

REUBEN: Mocker, they're beyond all price.

NAOMI: They should be, from the looks of them pure gold

Inside, I'd fancy, instead of flesh and blood But I've a notion Gideon's heart just now Is not so set on rescuing black sheep

As spoiling John Hall of his one ewe-lamb

Reusen What, Hetty?

NAOVI Ay, and your heart too should be,

At your age, Reuben

REUBEN Coveting ewe-lambs?

I've flocks enough.

Naout Ay, sheep and sheep and sheep!

Time you were wedded I'd have gone

(Breaks off) Gone where?

REUSEN
You're not

Naomi What am I saying? I only mean

That I'd feel easier with you settled down

RECBEN Easier? Why should you be uneasy?
NAOM Well,

You always were my favourite, and I feel,

If anything should happen (Breaks off)

REUSEN What should happen?

Naom Things happen suddenly

Receen Ay . ay, you mean

Like father's death.

Naom. I wasn't meaning that.

RELEEN I'm sorry, mother if I'd taken thought,

I'd not have mentioned

NAOM And why shouldn't you mention

Your father's death?

RECREY: Well, it's not good to think of NAOM You're always t'imking of it and you brood;

And brooding's apt to hatch out evil thoughts.

Everyone knows it was . . . The jury found . . .

(Breaks off.)

Nay,

REUBEN: The jury brought it in an accident.

NAOM: And he died suddenly, likely knowing nothing-

An easier death than many at his age Might look for. I'd far rather die like that Than linger.

REUBEN: Ay—but cut off in his prime.

NAOMI: His prime—at seventy? But you're right enough:

The Angertons ripen slowly—only reach

Their prime when they're about three-score-and-ten.

REUBEN: Ay, oaks that bear no acorns till they're sixty.

NAOMI: And they're still hale and hearty men at ninety.

But I'm no Angerton. I've no time to spare: The Kales are not long-lived.

REUBEN:

At forty-five,

Your thoughts are turning to the graveyard?

NAOMI:

Not to the graveyard yet: but if I live Till seventy, two-thirds of life are gone;

And I've not yet begun . . . (Breaks off.)

REUREN: Not yet begun?

NAOM: You wouldn't understand. And I've a deal To sort upstairs before I go to bed.

REUBEN: A deal to sort at this hour? That's not

NAOMI. Not like the me you know. Yet, I've a sight

Of things to settle I'll have no time to-morrow. But I'll slip down again at ten o'clock
To bid you both good-night. Likely, by then
Your brother will be back—I know the Halls
Keep early hours—and hungry from his courting
They talk of lovers fasting, but no lass
Has ever spoilt an Angerton's appetite
And even the loss of Kestrel King doesn't seem
To spoil your relish for your food

Reces That's so

I'm doing well—that raw wind's put an edge On my appetite—and yet I don't much like Thinking of them poor sheep, crossing the waves.

NAOM True Angerton, fretting for a seasick sheep!

Where is it bound for-Canada?

RECREN

Nay, mother,

For South America What ever put Canada into your head?

Naom Dear knows, but I Can't stay here, chattering of sheep till midnight. I've something else to do and think of

Reubey Well,

If only folk would keep their tongues to sheep— Ay, and their hearts from mischief—it would be . . .

NAOMI A blessed world!

(Naom goes out, shutting the door behind her.)
REUSEN And it's the devil's own.

(REUBLA turns from the table, and sits brooding over the fire. After a while the door bursts open, and Gideon Angerton enters hurrically, shutting it behind him; sinks into a chair with a groan; and sits with his head in his hands.)

REUBEN: What's up? Don't tell me the ewe-lamb won't . . .

Gideon: Lamb?

REUBEN: Ay, Hetty.

GIDEON: Hetty-oh, don't talk of her!

REUBEN: As bad as that? What's wrong?

GIDEON: What's wrong? What's wrong?

The devil has the whole world in his grip.

REUBEN: Just what I said.

GIDEON: You?

Reuben: Though not so familiar

With Nick as some, mayn't I just mention him Once in a while: or have you local-preachers The only right to make free with his name? But what's upset you now? Don't say a shower's Sluiced off the whitewash from your precious flock,

And left them patchy piebalds?

Gideon: You can fleer-

And father lying . . .

Reuben: Father's in his grave.

GIDEON: His blood is crying for vengeance from the ground.

REUBEN: Gideon!

GIDEON: Oh, you don't know! Oh, you don't know!

REUBEN: Whisht, Gideon, not so loud: remember mother motner.

GIDEON: Where is she?

In her room RECRES

She couldn't hear-Gibro\

Though soon she must hear, all the world shall hear . .

REUBEN Where have you been?

With Zachariah Dodd. GIDEON

REUBEN So and what bitters does old Zachariah

keep nowadays to wet his whistle with?

Gipeox And you can jest? But you don't know. O God t

REUBEN What don't I know? What's he been tell. ing you?

GIDEON Reuben, I can't tell how to break it to YOU

REUBEN Let it burst out itself, if it must come. So he's been telling you?

How father died Camera?

He saw it all. It was no accident.

It wasn't his own gun that did for him,

Though everybody thought he'd caught the trigger

Crossing the fence "Twas Robert Ellershaw

Crouched in the ditch, and shot him through the hedge,

RELBEY And you believe what that old dotard says? GIDEON He spoke the truth he swore it on the Book

RECIEV Yet he said nothing at the inquest? GIDEON Nay-

I couldn't understand . .

REUBEN He didn't tell you

Why he had held his peace?

GIDEON: He mumbled something

I didn't catch: and I was too distraught . . .

REUBEN: Why did he tell you after all these months?

GIDEON: He said that he'd lost patience.

Reuben: He said that?

GIDEON: I wondered why he did not tell you first.

Happen, he judged I'd better break it to you-

You might do something desperate. But you don't-

Don't seem to realise, somehow: and yet,

Small wonder! I was struck all of a heap

At first; and couldn't move.

REUBEN: It's come, at last.

Gideon: It's come . . . You do not mean you knew?

Reuben: I knew.

GIDEON: You knew, and never . . . O my God!

My God!

REUBEN: I knew before the inquest.

GIDEON: And you let . . .

REUBEN: I let them bring it in an accident.

GIDEON: But, Zachariah?

REUBEN: I shut Zachy's mouth

With sovereigns and with promises.

GIDEON: But why?

Reuben: I wanted time to think—to think it out.

Gideon: To think it out-your duty plain before you

To see the murderer hanged?

Reuben: Ay, it seemed plain

At first.

GIDEON: Then why . . .

GIDTON

When I began to think, RUPES . It wasn't quite so plain You see Not L GIDEON Daty is duty Ay, but there was mother RECEEN Gineov · I don't see why You wouldn't. RECKEY. Well, I don't. Gibbox The shock, of course—but then, she'd had the shock Of father's death, already and even then, You cannot let a murderer escape Just to spare people's feelings RECREN So it seems  $\cdot$ But mother . GIDEON You don't mean that mother knew! REUBEN Nay, God forbid! It was an accident, As far as mother knew How could she guess, When I'd stopped Zachariah's mouth with gold? Gideon And promises -- what promises? RECEEN Of rengeance, Gineon Vengeance—when there's the law? REUBEN . I said I'd take The law in my own hands GIDEON You never meant Rever I hardly know I had to keep him quiet At any cost, GIDEON But why? REUREN To think it out. Gmeox . I don't see RECEEL There was mother

Always mother !

Reuben, you never mean . . .

REUBEN: I only mean,

If Robert Ellershaw were tried and hanged For father's murder, there'd be talk.

GIDEON: My God!

Talk! And you'd let a murderer go scot-free For fear of tattle? What have we to fear? Justice is justice: and what have you gained? Murder will out: and Zachariah's blabbed; And there'll be talk enough now.

Reuben: So it seems.

GIDEON: I still don't understand.

REUBEN: It's difficult—

And I hardly know if I've a right to say it, But Gideon, Robert Ellershaw and mother Are just about of an age.

Gideon: Reuben!

Reuben: And father

Was twenty-five years older: and you know Father was hard.

GIDEON: A just, God-fearing man.

REUBEN: Ay, just, but hard. You never heard him speak

A kindly word to mother in your life.

GIDEON: Happen; but that's no reason . . .

Reuben: Nay, God knows!

No reason, but . . . Oh, if I only knew!

GIDEON: You knew the murderer. And you don't think mother . . .

Reuben: God knows, I think no harm of her: but Gideon,

It's long been plain who Robert Ellershaw Had set his heart on—why he never wed

GIDEON You think I never saw

Reuse: You never saw;

But other folk have eyes and if I'd let Old Zachariah talk, no power on earth Could have kept mother's name out.

GIDEON You forget

Your duty to the dead

REUBEN The dead are dead '
Our duty cannot save them—bring them back
And have we got no duty to the living '
I couldn't let mother suffer

Gideon So, you thought
To spare her? But you reckoned without God
God won't be mocked Oh, you can fleer at me,
His servant, but my God's the God of truth,
And truth prevails You thought to act a he
You saw your duty plain, and yet you shirked it
Afraid of evil tongues or, in your pride,
You thought to pit yourself against God's justice
And now, what have you gained? But God is just.
You failed him, and He's chosen me, His servant,
To be His instrument My duty's plain,
And I'll not shrink

Reuber Gideon, what will you do?
Gideon Speak out the truth the law must take its course

RFLEEN But it's too late

How can it ever be

Too late to do God's work?

Reuben: If you speak now,

All will come out: you can't tell half the truth.

Gideon: I'll tell the whole truth. What should I hold back?

noid back !

Reuben: You'd tell them I knew all before the inquest?

And that I stopped old Zachariah's mouth?

GIDEON: O God, I was forgetting! Yet, if I don't,

I'll be a traitor too, and to no purpose;

For Zachariah will not hold his tongue.

He hinted he'd heard something—said he guessed

If we didn't act, and quickly too, to lay

The murderer by the heels, he would escape.

REUBEN: Escape?

GIDEON: Ay, Ellershaw's leaving Burnshawgate:

He means to fly the country, seemingly.

REUBEN: I've never heard a word of it. He can't Be throwing up his farm in such a hurry.

GIDEON: Well, Zachariah's sure of it: and it's just Because it's been kept so quiet, it's dead-certain

He means to sneak away, and hide himself.

REUBEN: To fly the country? It might be best to let . . .

GIDEON: You'd never let him go, and put your soul . . .

But God will not be mocked. The murderer's fate Is not in our hands. Zachariah threatened That if we didn't, he would speak out now. He said he wouldn't sell his soul for gold: I didn't understand him—now I see.

He is an old man, Reuben. and nigh death;

And dreads the fires of hell You promised him, And you've not kept your promise You'd not let An old man go to hell, to stop folk tattling? He said it all came over him at Meeting,

When I was speaking

Receal This comes of your ranting f

You dangled him above the fiery pit?

GIDFON I preach the word of God · I'm but the mouth

God speaks through and he saw that gold was dross— He couldn't take it with him to the next world.

REUBEN And if he could, 'twould melt, and burn his breeches?

Gipeox You jest, at such a time?

REUBEN What's left to me,

But jesting ' And, God knows, the laugh's against me. Gibros You promised Zachariah you would act.

REUBEN I promised him

Gideo Reuben, you hed to him

That you might shirk your duty and you damned

His soul to everlasting But it's not

For his sake I would speak, nor for my own,

Though I've my soul to save, and his, and yours,

From the undying fire. I couldn't rest

With father murdered Don't you hear his blood Crying for vengeance? And the word of God—

An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth . . .

Reliber. It's come

I'll keep my word

GIDEON You'll speak?

Reuber Nay, it's too late

To speak; but I must keep my promise.

Reuben! GIDEON:

REUBEN: I said I'd take the law into my hands.

GIDEON: You mean . . .

REUBEN: I mean a man has killed my father,

And he must die

GIDEON: You mean . . . but there's the law.

REUBEN: The time's gone by for that: and anyway,

If he's to die, why should I thrust the job

Of killing my father's murderer on the shoulders

Of someone else?

GIDEON: But it's the law.

Whose law? REUREN .

GIDEON: But Reuben, you would send your soul to hell

REUBEN: My soul has lived in hell for these twelve months.

GIDEON: Ay-it may be the way that God appoints For your redemption.

REUBEN: It's the way to spare

My mother. Folk will talk; but they'll not know.

There'll be no trial, no cross-questioning.

Gideon: No trial—you mean you'd take your own life too?

Reuben, it's terrible—I cannot bear . . . But it may be God's way to save your soul

Alive. God moves in a mysterious way

His wonders to perform. We cannot see-Blinded by sin, we stumble. Yet he spake

To Zachariah's heart through me: and now My words have roused you.

Reuben. There's no other way

(Reusen goes to the gun-rack over the mantleshelf, takes down a gun, and opens it to make sure if is loaded, then moves towards the door, but turns on the threshold)

REUBEN Gideon, you'll say "Good-bye" for me?
(He goes out, closing the door behind him)

Gideo Nay, Reuben, You shall not! Yet, God's will . He spake through me

God moves in a mysterious way My words

Have roused the sinner's . . O my God, have mercy!

(Giblor drops to his knees with a moun)

SCENE II

Scene The same, an hour later. Gideo Angeron still crouches on his knees with his hands clasped as though in prayer, but is staring before him with half-crazed eyes. The door opens, and Revben Angeron enters quietly, shutting the door behind him, and sets the gun in the corner of the room hear the door. Gideo turns and regards him in amazement. Reuben does not heed him, but sinks into a chair without a word, and sits gazing into the fire.

GIDEON You have come back?

REUBEN I have come back
GIDEON I thought

You've done it, Reuben?

REUBEN: Nay, Gideon, I've done nothing.

GIDEON: Nothing?

REUBEN: I couldn't.

GIDEON: You have shirked again?

REUBEN: I've shirked.

GIDEON: But where've you been?

Reuben: To Burnshawgate.

Gideon: And you've come back without . . . He's still alive?

Reuben: He's still alive. I went to Burnshawgate:

The snow was in my face—it's snowing now:

I knew 'twould snow to-night, with that raw wind . . .

Gideon: And you can talk of snow! Have you gone crazed?

REUBEN: Happen—it's hard to tell: but I don't fancy I'm crazy now.

GIDEON: You went to Burnshawgate-

And then?

REUBEN: As I drew near it through the snow-

The snow blew in my teeth, and stung my face . . .

GIDEON: My God! Speak out, speak out! As you drew near?

REUBEN: I saw the parlour-window, lighted up: It looked so homely . . .

GIDEON: God's destroyed your wits.

Reuben: Nay, Gideon, hear me out. The blinds were up:

And, as I paused a moment on the threshold, I saw into the room. It looked so warm And bright and cosy there, out of the wind—So safe: and I, out in the wind and snow,

With cold death in my hand

The curse of God

Is on you

RELET Nay, you'll never understand But hear me out I haven't much to tell. I looked, and saw him, standing by the fire, Unconscious, while . . .

Gibros Alone? Oh, Reuben, say

He was alone! Mother's upstairs—you're sure?

REUBEN You dare to think that she . . He was alone.

And gazing into the fire with smiling eyes:
And as I watched him there, it seemed so crazy—
First, father, standing upright in his pride,
And Robert, creeping up to lay him low;
Then Robert, standing upright in his pride
Of life, and I . when in a few short years
We'll all be lying low enough, without .

Gideo. You saw him standing—and you did not

REUBEN My God, you never thought I meant to Without his knowing? You fancied I'd sneak up To a man's house, and shoot him from behind?

Gideon Well, I don't understand but you've not done it,

Whatever you meant to do

REUBEN I haven't done it I couldn't call him out, somehow: it seemed So crazy—he and I should stand out there, Facing each other in the falling snow,

That one might stretch the other stiff and stark,

When anyway . . . And that could never end it.

If I had fallen . . .

GIDEON: So, you were afraid?

REUBEN: Hardly afraid: but, if I'd fallen, Robert

Could scarcely have escaped a second time:

And . . .

GIDEON: Nay, by God!

Reuben: And mother would be spared

Nothing.

GIDEON: God would have sped the bullet straight
To the scoundrel's heart: but you have failed God twice

REUBEN: I'm not so sure that God . . .

GIDEON: His curse is on you:

But I'm His servant; and I'm not afraid.

REUBEN: Nay, Gideon, listen: God . . .

GIDEON: I will not hearken

While you blaspheme. You've always been a mocker; And it's the tempter, speaking through your mouth. You've let him make his nest within your heart—

The old serpent; and it's his, the tongue that speaks.

But woe to them that take His name in vain!

And God shall bruise the serpent's head: my heel . . .

REUBEN: Nay, Gideon, listen: it is not for men To punish such as Robert.

GIDEON: But God makes
Of man His instrument of wrath. You'd let
The murderer escape?

REUBEN: I'd let him go

Where he is bound for: but he can't escape

From his own deed, trust God to see to that.

Gibrov You'd let him go?

Reuben Why not, if Zachariah

Was right, and Ellershaw is set on flitting?

GIDFON Never! He shan't escape and anyway,

You've Zachariah still to reckon with.

REUBY: I'll talk to him to-morrow With Robert gone,

The old man may be silenced He'll never guess That Ellershaw could be brought back again I'll find a way to stop his mouth he's failing,

'Twon t be for long

Gineov You may bribe Zarhariah
To silence but you can't buy God with gold,
Or blind Him with the smoke of your burnt-offerings—
They are abomination in His nostrils.
He is a jealous God, and overturns
The altars of the infidel, and quenches
The fires of Baal and of Ashtoreth
And I'm His servant, and you cannot stop
My mouth

REUBEN But Gideon, you would never speak, After I've told you.

Gideon Robert Ellershaw
Shall pay the price his blood be on his head

REUBEN Hush, Gideon-mother!

(The door opens, and NAOM ANGERTON enters Neither Reuben nor Gideon looks up, but both stand with eyes fixed on the fire)

Naour You're not quarrelling?

I thought I heard

REUBEN: Nay, we're not quarrelling.

NAOMI: That's well; for I'd not have you quarrel to-night.

REUBEN: To-night?

NAOMI: My last night here: I leave to-morrow.

REUBEN: You leave?

NAOMI: I'm leaving Kestrel Edge to-morrow

For Canada.

GIDEON: With Robert Ellershaw?
NAOMI (starting): How did you guess?

GIDEON: O God, and so my mother's

A murderer's . . .

REUBEN (clapping a hand to Gideon's mouth): Nay! none of your Bible-talk:

You shall not turn your preacher's dirty tongue

On your own mother. (To NAOMI) Come, you'd best sit down:

You're faint.

NAOMI (sinking into a seat, and speaking with a dazed voice): But why does he say "murderer"?

The coroner's jury found . . . the whole world knows . . . Gideon: And the whole world shall know it for a lie.

It was no accident: your fancy-man . . .

REUBEN: Gideon!

GIDEON: I'll not be hushed. Your fancy-man Slunk down behind the hedge, and shot your husband.

NAOMI: You lie—they fought!

Reuben: Mother, you didn't know

Ellershaw'd killed . . .

NAOMI: Reuben, my son, I knew:

And I'll speak out the truth, think what you will.

You cannot judge, till you've come through what I have.

Though happen, Reuben, you may understand He told me all—though, from the first, I knew

I never thought it was an accident—

He would have spared me; but I made him tell:

I wrung it out of him They fought for me.

REUBEN For you?

Naomi As many a time two men have fought

For a woman's sake You cannot understand:

You're boys, and don't know what it is to love

Gipeo. He told you that?

NAOMI I wrung it out of him.

He only told me, when he found I knew

It was no accident he tried to spare me.

They fought for me he heard your father's gun,

And took his own, and went right up to him Where he was rabbiting, and challenged him.

And then they fought like men. Your father fell;

And Robert . . .

Gideox Sneaked into his

Reubry Hold your peace!

Mother, he hed to you He lay in wait,

And murdered father-shot him through the hedge.

NAOMI (starting up) Nay, it's not true!

Retreat Mother, I fear it's true

For he was seen

Naom Seen? I don't understand-

Who saw?

RECEEN Old Zachariah Dodd

NAOM: He saw-

And never told?—the inquest . . .

Reuben: I had stopped

His mouth . . .

NAOM: You knew, and never said a word?

REUBEN: How could I guess that you knew Robert had killed . . .

GIDEON: She knew her paramour had killed her husband:

And she would fly with him.

REUBEN (to GIDEON): Another word,

And I'll . . .

NAOMI (to REUBEN): Still, though you thought I didn't know,

Why did you hush it up?

REUBEN: I hoped to spare you:

I knew that Robert . . .

NAOMI: Oh, it's all a lie!

They fought—they fought!

Reuben: Mother, I fear it's true.

NAOM: I wrung it out . . . Oh, Reuben, you'll believe me?

How could I dream Robert had murdered him

Cold-blooded? And I'll not believe it now!

Yet, I'd to wring it, word by word, from him.

I thought he tried to spare me. Now I see.

GIDEON: Twas his own neck he tried to save.

NAOMI (sinking to the ground): O God,

What have I done!

GIDEON: You're taken in the net

Of your iniquities. God bides His time:

Yet He will not be mocked. He holds His hand;

But, when it falls! You're stricken to your knees:
And we should all but I This wicked house!
God's curse is on us all and I must go.

(Reuben, who has been bending over NAOMI, looks up)

RELBEN Where are you going?

Gideon To wrestle with the Lord.

Rever (bending over NAOM). Don't heed him, mother. Gideon's just a lad

NAOM Reuben, you understand?

REUBEN I hardly know

(NAOMI and RIBEN having their backs to him, Gideon takes the gun from the corner, unnoticed and steals out of the room RYUBEN looks up as the door closes, and listens till he hears Gideon's steps in the room overhead, and then the sound of his voice praying ea loud tones)

REUBEN He's gone to his own room He'll spend the night

On his knees till he drops asleep and in the morning.

Naom God has punished me.

SCENE III

Scene: The same. Naom is still crouched on the ground; and Reuben, half-kneeling, bends over her.

Presently, Naom lifts her head; and begins to talk slowly, with eyes fixed on the fire.

NAOMI: No one will understand: but I must speak. I've had a hard life of it, from the first. I never knew my mother-never heard What had become of her, although I think She wasn't dead. She may be living yet, For all I know-and she would understand! My father never mentioned her to me: . And though I searched the churchyard for her grave, I never found it: and I dared not ask My father; and I could not bring myself To question others, dreading what I might learn. That was the home I lived in, till the day My father gave me away—I had no choice: Who'd ever listen to a chit of a girl, When it's a question of property and sheep? I'd happened to come into my father's mind; Or, rather, had forced myself upon his notice: I'd asked him for some money to buy hairpins, My first—I see his face now, as he stared. "Hairpins?" he says, surprised: "a bairn like you!" Then looked me up and down: and realising I was a child no longer, knitted his brows, And pursed his lips, and looked me over again, The way he'd judge a filly's points, and reckon

What she would fetch him and next day I learned He'd chosen a harder man to be my husband. You knew your father well, I married him, Though he was well-nigh half as old again, And I a lass, just turned eighteen I lived—Nay, but I never lived I slowly froze Into the block of ice that was my home Oh, but I cannot tell—and what's the use? No one will understand

Reusev. Mother, speak on,

If it will ease you

NAOMI And then Robert came
Until he came, I thought I'd turned to ice,
And never would feel anything again:
And then he came to Burnshawgate. We met.
And I felt the fire I'd thought I'd smothered dead
Leap up to meet his fire We loved—but you,
You'll never understand you haven't loved
And I'd not loved till then.

Reuber Mother !

Naomi You mean

My sons? Yes, Reuben, I've loved you in the fashion A mother loves her babies—but the love
I speak of 's different—different as a furnace
From April sunshine, and it burned the fiercer,
Having been choked so long, so long damped down
It burned me through and through—I'd never had
A man's love—and I'd never loved a man.
Some day, you'll learn—and son, you will believe—
I know that you'll believe, you are not hard—
I was your father's wife until he died

I had to fight—to trample down the fire, But never

RÉUBEN: Mother, I know.

NAOMI: Though, in my heart,

I was all Robert's. When he came, I lived
For the first time; and life became the thing
I'd dreamt it, as a girl—a thrilling hazard,
A flame that searched and stabbed me, and stung my blood

To madness: and . . . I must tell out the truth-And even when your father died . . . Oh, you Will never understand !—'twas all a story— Two men who fought to win a woman's love, And I the woman! And when I had wrung The truth from Robert, or what I took to be . . . How could I doubt him, when I loved him so? Son, I'm not trying to excuse myself, Only to make it clear . . . and I can't see-Blood's in my eyes now; and I cannot see, Although I had it all so clear just now: I saw it in the fire so clear. But you May pity me, son, if you ever love, If you are ever burnt up by the flame. Oh, I was blind with pride-I thought they'd fought For me: and I was blinded by my love-The love I thought had come at last—my dream Come true—and it was all a lie. Naught's true But hunger and heartache: and I'd loved the lie. And now, what's to become of me? He said He'd take me to a new world; and we'd live . . . I was to live—to live for the first time.

I tried to hold him—said I couldn't go
So soon but he—his word was law to me.

I loud him more for tal ing his own way.

I loved him more for taking his own way,

For mastering me, breaking my will to his And now I see all plain, he was afraid—

Afraid, my man of men! He swore they'd fought

Fairly . . Oh, I was blind! He lied to me. Your father never lied And I'm blind now.

Groping in blood-red darkness I thought to grasp

Love, and it turns to hate that tears my heart.

If only I could die-if I could die

To-night—and life was to begin for me

To-morrow! (Starting up) O my God! I had forgotten—

He's coming here he must be on his way.

REUBEN. He's coming here?

Naomi He was to come to see you,

When I had broken the news, soon after ten What can I say to hun, if he should come?

How can I face

REUBEN Mother, you mustn't see him

I'll meet him on the way, and warn him

NAOM. Warn him?

REUBEN I'll tell him all is known, and he must fly To-night, alone.

NAOMI Yes, he must go alone REUBEN. And then, to-morrow, I'll see Zachariah,

And stop his mouth

NAOMI

But Gideon, where is he?

RECEEN In his own room I heard him praying

Though I cannot hear him now. Happen, he sleeps: Yet, it is queer . . .

(Looks towards the corner near the door.)

My God! The gun—the gun!

NAOMI: What is it, Reuben?

Reuben: I'd have sworn I put . . .

NAOMI: He's killing Robert!

(As NAOMI speaks, the door is burst open; and Gideon staggers into the room with the gun in his hands, and stands before NAOMI and REUBEN with eyes of frenzied triumph.)

GIDEON: God will not be mocked!

He sent the murderer out to meet his doom

Half-way.

REUBEN: You've shot him, Gideon?

Gideon: Ay, I've shot him.

I was God's servant; and He chose me out To be His instrument of wrath.

NAOMI: O God!

And Robert, now! Where are you going, Reuben?

Reuben: To look to Robert: there may still be time-

He mayn't be dead.

GIDEON: He's dead—stone dead: I felt His heart, to make quite sure: and then I dragged His carcase to the edge of Blackmire Moss, And flung it in.

REUBEN: You dragged him through the snow—Making a trail; and then brought back the gun? You're a fine murderer!

Gideon: I, a murderer?

I was God's instrument

Reuben And so, you took

Ellershaw's sin on yourself, by murdering him?

Giplox Murder ! It wasn't murder !

Reuben "Twill be called

Murder, when there's the price to pay

GIDEON The price?

Murder! O God, I never realised

My hands are red with blood. I feel the brand

Searing my brow Reuben, I dare not die !

You'll save me-you'll not let them take me, Reuben,

And hang me by the neck?

Reuben They shall not take you

NAOMI He must escape, before . . .

Release There's no escape

For any of us in this world now we're trapped

If he fled now, they'd only track him down

We must abide our fate, and face it out.

Gibeo. The rope's about my neck, and I'll drop sheer

Into the everlasting fire! But you-

You said you'd save me!

REUBEN They'll not take you, Gideon.

You've done no crime 'twas I who murdered Robert.

Naom Reuben!

Gibroi You mean

Reusen "Twas my job from the first.

If I'd not shirked it

Giprov Nay, you shall not take . . .

And yet, it was your job—the eldest son

Releas It was my job the blood be on my head

NAOMI: Reuben, you shall not! God, what have I done!

REUBEN: Mother, you must keep silence now. We can't Undo what has been done. We can but wait:

And if to-morrow bring the worst, it's I

Must go with them: and you must speak no word.

Gideon: Reuben, you shall not give your life for mine . . .

And yet I cannot die—I cannot die. . . .

Murder? It wasn't murder? I was chosen

To be God's instrument of wrath—to bring

Confusion on His enemies—yea, I—

The sword of the Lord and Gideon! It's choking me,

The halter: and I feel the flames—the flames

Of the everlasting fire! I dare not die.

Twas your job, Reuben: and you said you'd save me! The devil has me in his clutch—the flames!

(He falls to the floor in a swoon.)

NAOMI: I mustn't speak; but let you . . . and live on?

REUBEN: Mother, you'll promise—the last thing I ask you?

NAOMI: I promise, son.

Reuben: And, mother, you'll not take . . .

NAOMI: Nay, I will live life out-my punishment,

To live life out. I may last twenty years.

I boasted I'd begin to live to-morrow;

And my new life begins. I'll see it through,

My new life—and I've only done to death

My husband, and my lover, and my son!

Reuben: You must look after Gideon: he's only swooned.

WORKS BY WILFRID GIBSON

Crown 8vo. 6s. net

KRINDLESYKE

Mr. Laurence Binyon in "The Observer."—
"'Krindlesyke' is at once the most ambitious and the strongest work that Mr. Wilfrid Gibson has given us. It is a dramatic poem, firmly designed, and carried out with abundant energy and power."

Prof. C. H. Herford in "The Manchester Guardian."—"Mr. Gibson's essay—for there is confessedly something experimental about it—must be reckoned, with those of Mr. Abercrombie, to whom 'Krindlesyke' is dedicated, among the most remarkable dramatic poems of our time."

Crown 8vo. 3s.6d. net

WHIN

The Observer.—" There are charming things in this little book. . . . Throughout there is a very cunning use of northern place-names that stir the imagination like the sound of the Borderers' riding. 'R. L. S.' would have liked these names and used them as cunningly."

The New Witness.—"'Whin' is a collection of very felicitous verses, most of which have been inspired, directly or indirectly, by the War, all of which are charged with the splendour and the sorrow of Border minstrelsy. . . . Mr. Gibson's verses are simple—with the simplicity of great art."

LONDON: MACMILLAN & CO., LTD.

WORKS BY WILFRID GIBSON

Crewn 800 31 6d net LIVELIHOOD

Dramatic Reverses

The Times —"All have the same freedom, vigour, life, tenderness, minute and thoughtful observation, ever-present sense of the interestingness of human beings and their doings and feelings, work and love and play. There is not a dull page in them"

Katharine Tynan in "The Bookman."—"These 'Dra manc Reverses' are compact of imagination. . . . The poems are so much extraordinarily vivid and compelling short stories that they might be read with zest by a man with no poetry in his soul, although that man would miss the beauty of poetry which hes over the tale"

Crown 800 71 6d net NEIGHBOURS

The Westminster Gazette—"The workmanship of these heart-breaking little studies is, as we should expect from Mr Gibson, honest and exact. Their grim view of human destiny, its all-pervading greyness, is presented with appropriate austerity, and this restraint and detachment increase their vividness and force. The beautiful sonnets in the section called 'Home' show that he, too, is capable of delight'

The Spectator —"Mr Gibson's skill is most admirable when we consider that it is allied to poetic feeling of the utmost simplicity and depth."

LONDON MACMILLAN & CO. LTD.